BOSTON GIRL INDICTED FOR POLICEMAN'S DEATH

22-YEAR LOVE WAS FUTILE

Marlboro Woman Says Pomphrey's Courtship Ended in 'Be Sister to Me' Proposition

"He used to kiss me so much a few years ago that I was the laughing stock of my friends, but then his ardor cooled and he wanted me to be a sister to him," Miss Margaret V. Lynch of Marlboro told a Superior Court jury in East Cambridge today, as she testified in her own behalf in her breach of promise suit for $10,000 against Michael J. Pomphrey, fifty-two years old, also of Marlboro.

Miss Lynch, who is fifty-one years old, indignantly attacked the testimony of the defendant, who recently married a twenty-three-year-old girl, to the effect that their courtship was broken off by mutual consent.

"My love for him never cooled, and I refused to be a sister to him," she told the court. "I always waited, in the hope that he would turn out to be a man.

"He used to call me 'bab' once and spend most of his evenings holding hands, until his demonstrativeness became a standing joke in my family. While I lived in Waltham he called at my house six nights a week, and was always underfoot."

SAYS SHE REFUSED HIM.

The defendant, who is night watch man at the Fayville dam of the Metropolitan water works, took the stand and immediately was asked by his counsel, John E. Rice, whether he used to "indulge in kissing bees with the plaintiff six times a week, and twice on Sundays."

"It was never quite as bad as that" said the embarassed witness, "but there was a time when I was very affectionate. That was long ago, and Miss Lynch herself by her refusal to

FAMILIES DRIVEN OUT BY FIRE IN WEST END

Seventy-five men, women and children were driven out by fire early today from the five-story brick tenement block at No. 160 Chambers street, West End.

NEW FISH MARTS DELIGHT MANY THOUSANDS

Here's a self-evident argument that fish dealers can sell fish as cheap as the Boston American five-cent fish stores are showing the public it can be done:

There were 6,000,000 pounds of fish received at South Boston Fish Pier during the week ending last night, the largest amount in any one week in the history of Boston. Of this

Arrests Reveal Big Drug 'Picnics'

A regular system of "dope buying" trips—for all the world like a sight-seeing trip—was revealed today, the police say, in the arrest of two men charged with selling habit-forming drugs and with conspiracy to break the Harrison Anti-Drug Law.

Joseph Mareto, forty-five years, of Squire's court, Cambridge, was arrested by Special Officer Welch of Court square station at revolver point in a dark alley in Somerville. In the darkness four other men, described by the police as "hoppies" or "dope-buyers," escaped.

Michael Garsidt, twenty-four years, of Squire's court, Cambridge, was arrested at his home.

The police accuse Garsidt of being the "conductor" of "picnics" of "hoppies" from Scollay square to the Cambridge end of the viaduct for the sale of morphine and other habit-forming drugs.

Mareto, the police say, met the parties on the Cambridge end and sold the drugs.

BARNEY IS INDICTED AS SLAYER

Three Others Also Accused in Deininger Tragedy; Chauffeur Held as Witness

Herman Barney, soldier, stenographer and automobile thief, was today indicted for murder in the first degree as the slayer of Patrolman Charles Deininger of the Hanover street station, in Chelsea, a few weeks ago.

His sweetheart, Marion O'Brien, was at the same time indicted as an accessory both before and after the fact, and also in two additional counts charging statutory offenses.

John F. Dillon and Joseph F. Hurley, friends of Barney, were indicted as accessories before and after the fact, while James Colonna, chauffeur of the car in which Barney, according to the charges, rode from Boston to Chelsea on the night Patrolman Deininger was murdered, was freed of any charge connected with the slaying. Colonna was, however, detained as a material witness.

MAY SOLVE AUTO THEFTS.

The action of the grand jury brings one step nearer its conclusion one of the most absorbing cases the local authorities have had to work on in years.

It may be that before convictions are secured the world at large will secure an insight into an automobile stealing traffic which has assumed alarming proportions. Not all of those concerned in this traffic are persons of the underworld. Some who stand high in public esteem may be involved.

With indictments returned against all the principals in the case it might now be possible to relate a series of happenings which lead directly up to the murder of Patrolman Deininger. In the first instance the man who slew Deninger had no idea that a police officer had been killed. On the contrary he fully believed that the man he fought with and fired one shot at was himself an automobile thief who was stealing from thieves.

On the day prior to Deininger's murder three automobiles were stolen in Boston and taken to Chelsea, where they were placed in Bruno's garage, then rented by Albert Paeff of Revere, a Lynn automobile man.

BEGIN NATION-WIDE FIGHT AGAINST WORLD LEAGUE COVENANT

New York, March 7.—The announcement of a new organization to combat the League of Nations plan was made last night at the dinner of the Society of Arts and Sciences at the Hotel Pennsylvania.

At the same meeting Senator James A. Reed of Missouri, in denouncing the Wilson league plan, stated that the people had been intentionally or ignorantly misled in regard to the proposed international organization.

The new organization is to be called "A League for the Preservation of American Independence." Its avowed purpose is "to defend from impairment the fundamentals of American policy as expressed in the Declaration of Independence, the Constitution of the United States, Washington's Farewell Address and the Monroe Doctrine."

Announcement of its organization was made by the toastmaster, former Senator James A. O'Gorman, at the request of Henry A. Wise Wood, one of 1,100 diners present to hear Senators Reed, Borah and Thomas.

In discussing the new organization Mr. Wise said:

"We are not opposed to a League of Nations which will lessen the possibility of war and yet not take away American sovereignty. Persons who are supporting the Wilson league, however, want to back the American cow into the poorer nations of Europe and milk it.

"We want to have millions of citizens in our new organization. We want Republicans, Prohibitionists and men of all other political faiths. We are going to undertake a nation-wide campaign in support of the new body."

Senator Reed urged careful study on the part of the people of this country of the proposed Wilson league before it be accepted. He said:

"The scheme is revolutionary and dangerous to the last degree. The powers warranted to the executive council, and which may be exercised by five men, are stupendous, dangerous and appalling. Their misuse might result in destruction of the liberty of the world—in the crushing of the American republic—in the creation of an international despotism worse than ever has cursed the earth or any single nation thereof.

"The acceptance by the United States of the proposed constitution of the League of Nations may involve the very life of the Republic. It is high time patriots should arouse themselves.

ASSAILS WILSON'S TACTICS.

"An attempt is being made to drive it through to a conclusion before the American people have any opportunity to read its provisions or dig out of them the hidden and sinister purposes of the undertaking.

"The people have been taught that the league is merely an amicable agreement that the world shall remain at peace. They have been told that, unless the league is consummated, the world will be immediately involved in a chaos of war that will destroy the very foundations of society and civilization. People are taught that they can receive the benefits of this league without involving our country in any serious obligations.

"I affirm that it, in fact, proposes to set up a world government which will have control over all international matters as completely as the Federal government now has jurisdiction over questions affecting the States of the Union.

"Moreover, it will have jurisdiction of domestic matters which, in the opinion of the majority of the league, may tend to produce difficulties out of which war may spring.

CAPITAL OF THE WORLD.

"The seat of the league will become, in fact, the capital of the world.

"The construction of the league is essentially autocratic. The powers are so highly centralized and so utterly without balances, check or safeguards as to be repugnant to all forms of democracy.

"It appears that except when the league is actually in session, all of the powers of the government will be vested in nine individuals sitting together and called the Executive Council. These nine men meet and issue an order. These nine men have the power to construe the order thus issued.

"These same nine men have the right to command the execution of the order. Thus there is concentrated in nine individuals, eight of them non-residents and aliens to the United States, legislative, judicial and executive powers.

"More accurately stated, there is confided to these nine men the power to issue decrees affecting every nation in the world; to construe these decrees when issued, and to order their enforcement.

"This council of nine contains within the limits of its authority all of the autocratic powers which characterize the worst despotisms of the earth.

"This objection is not met by the fact that the league itself may be called together and may take jurisdiction; because the league, when convened, like the council, is a single body in which is concentrated all legislative, executive and judicial powers.

"Besides, when the league meets it consists of but a single body composed of delegates. In all that body, large or small, the United States will have a single vote.

"It is therefore apparent that for all practical purposes the government of the world within the powers granted may be said to be vested in nine men. A combination of five men would constitute a majority. Thus the government of the world could be exercised by five men.

"The powers granted to the council, and which may be exercised by five men, are stupendous, dangerous and appalling. Their misuse might result in the destruction of the liberty of the world—in the crushing of the American Republic, in the creation of an international despotism worse than has ever cursed the earth or any single nation thereof.

NATIONS ALL BOUND.

"The council has authority to fix the size of the army and navy of the various nations of the earth, and when once determined and accepted, no nation can thereafter change without the consent of the council.

"Notice that the various nations undertake to 'preserve against external aggression the territorial integrity and existing political independence of all states members of the league,' and the executive council is given the authority to 'advise' upon the means of which the obligation shall be fulfilled.

"In view of these plain provisions of the league, what becomes of the pretense that the Monroe Doctrine is not involved? I say that any claim by any man that the Monroe Doctrine is not wiped out by this league is either made in ignorance of the terms of the instrument or it is dishonestly made.

"The yielding of the Monroe Doctrine, however, serious, may be passed by as almost inconsequential in the presence of the fact that our very sovereignty is conceded. One of the highest attributes of sovereignty is the right to maintain that sovereignty.

"The right to maintain sovereignty amounts to nothing unless the power to maintain it exists. It is the very right of self-defence. It is vital. It is life itself. Yet, by this instrument, according to the provisions of Article VIII., the executive council determines the size of our army and our navy.

"And after that question has been determined, and we have once accepted the decision, we cannot increase the size of our army or our navy, no matter what may be the change of conditions; no matter what may be the stress of the hour; no matter what may be the danger involved, unless we can gain the gracious consent of eight aliens, representing eight foreign nations, which may be engaged in a common conspiracy against us.

"Thus we are made to yield the right of self-defence, which is the right to life, and we yield it to a tribunal composed of aliens.

MUST AID ALL NATIONS.

"Notice again the language of Article X. We are made to agree to preserve, against external aggression, the territorial integrity and existing political independence of all States members of the league.

"If we enter the league we must carry this out in good faith. If Great Britain's possessions are attacked in South Africa our fleets and our armies must go there.

"If Russia shall hereafter join the league and shall be attacked in the Arctic region, our fleets and our armies must go there.

"If France shall be attacked in her possessions in Africa, our fleet and our armies must go to the Equator. If Japan is attacked, even by a white nation, we must rush to its protection.

MAKES U. S. A SUB-STATE.

"In one hundred and five years we have not had a war of European origin. The Spanish War I do not count, because it originated over conditions in Cuba. In that one hundred and five years Europe has had constant turmoil. The President tells us that conditions today in Europe are frightful. Indeed, he says, unless America shall join this League that chaos shall rule again.

"At present, the United States, in the exercise of its sovereign rights, will enter any controversy. It can, as occasion arises, determine for itself whether its interests are involved, or whether the interests of the world or the rights of man call upon it to take action.

The Soldiers' Service Bureau of the Boston American has been established for the purpose of giving help to the soldiers and sailors of the United States Army and Navy. Answers to questions as to location of the various units appear every day in this column. Prominent attorneys are always ready and anxious to clear up difficulties of a legal nature. Any unemployed enlisted man will be given the help of the department toward securing a position, and the discharge of soldiers because of distress among the home folks will be facilitated.

The department is doubly efficient, as it is not operated as a question and answer column, but is working in connection with similar bureaus in Hearst's New York American, Atlanta Georgian, Chicago Herald and Examiner, San Francisco Examiner and Los Angeles Examiner. The headquarters is in Washington.

Any suggestions for broadening the scope of the bureau will be gratefully received.

WOMEN DEMAND 6-MONTHS' PAY FOR HEROES

Massachusetts Organizations United in Seeking War Bonus for Discharged Service Men

The women of Massachusetts are waging a fight in behalf of six months' pay for soldiers, sailors and marines as advocated by the Boston American.

They are mostly mothers in the Grand Army Women's' Relief Corps and in the Grange, and in organizations such as the Eagles, whose New England convention endorsed the American's petition to the Secretaries of War and the Navy, and in various other fraternal and patriotic organizations.

They are circulating the petitions in lodge halls and meeting places and adding thousands of signatures, and they are doing much personal work among their friends which is resulting in reaching hundreds whose attention would not otherwise be called to the petition.

The latest organization whose women members have taken up the fight is the Worcester Chapter of the Women of Moose Heart Legion, whose recorder, Mrs. Frank E. Horne, not only sent in a large number of signatures, but said the organization was interesting itself in the petition and that hundreds of more signatures would follow.

HUNDREDS TO GIVE AID.

"Many would sign times without number if allowed," she declares. "One very frequent expression heard is 'Why not twelve months' pay?' Or until they procure their former positions or one equally as good. That is the spirit that prevails among true Americans. More signatures will follow from other lodges of our organization."

A Wakefield correspondent writes that the petition has been circulated in practically every meeting place in the town and in the manufacturing establishments and has been signed by nearly everyone there.

The members of the Wakefield police and fire departments, many of whom are the fathers of sons in service, the Business Association, the employes of the Harvard Knitting Mills, the telephone operators, employes of the lead lined pipe factory and those of the Haywood Brothers & Wakefield Company, have endorsed the petition.

Leading citizens and officials of the place give it their heartiest endorsement and urge support for it. Engineer Edward S. Jacobs of the Wakefield fire department praises the petition as being in line with progress, and says:

"The Boston American is always found in the front rank with ideas that are good. I am certainly in favor of the six months' pay plan for all our soldiers, sailors and marines."

EX-SENATOR BEAN FOR PLAN.

Former Senator Charles A. Bean says of the petition: "It is a brilliant idea."

Gardner E. Campbell, editor of the Daily Item, says the petition has his backing. He declared:

"The Hearst newspapers have my backing in the great work they are always doing for the betterment of the people. I favor this petition for six months' pay for our soldiers, sailors and marines."

Chief of Police James J. Pollard expresses himself as being strongly in favor of the plan, while Augustus J. Jenkins of the firm of Jenkins-Phipps states that he cheerfully signed the petition and indorses it.

The eagerness with which discharged service men are applying for the $60 bonus shows the great need of the ex-soldier or ex-sailor for ready cash. These men have not given up faith in the government to provide more generously for them than the $60 bonus does. They be-bills which have accumulated since the other nations to surpass him in the treatment of his sons.

They are among the most earnest workers for the petition as it will give them not only money enough to purchase a civilian outfit, but something more. It will keep them until they find work and it will pay many bills which have accumulated since their entrance into the army.

PROMINENT CHURCHMAN IS ARRESTED AS "PEEPER" IN SAUGUS

BAILED OUT BY WIFE

Jenkins, Held as Suspect, Said to Have Been Caught While Watching House

Saugus police are confident that in the arrest of Ulric B. F. A. Jenkins, member of the Saugus Board of Trade, a prominent church and club man of the town, they have at last caught the man who has been terrorizing the women of the Cliftondale district, by peeping into their windows, for the past two years. The police assert that they have known that the man was Jenkins, but have never been able to catch him in the act before.

The man who has so successfully evaded the police while he played the role of "Peeping Tom" was caught by officers of the force on Wednesday night crouched beneath a window of the home of Ralph Powers of No. 25 Endicott street, Cliftondale. The window was one opening into the chamber occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Powers.

Jenkins' excuse that he was watching a vacant house next door was discredited by the police, on the ground that he could have watched that house easily from his own house, directly across the street.

He will appear in Saugus court tomorrow morning charged with trespass and with being a "Peeping Tom."

The police declare that the man has been behaving strangely for some time, and that he has been closely watched for the past two weeks. He is a supply sergeant of the State Guard of Saugus, which he helped organize, and has been a candidate for the Legislature several times, but never elected. He is a member of the Saugus Board of Trade, is prominent in church work, a member of the Odd Fellows, of the Ancient Order of United Workmen, and a member of the Boston Painters' Union. He was born in England and has lived in Saugus for twelve years and always born an excellent reputation.

Jenkins is married and has a twelve-year-old son. At the time of his arrest bail was immediately furnished by his wife.

BRYAN'S GRANDSON IN CITY; ASPIRES TO THE NAVY

Reginald Bryan Owen and his French governess, Mlle. Marguerite Passot, in Boston on way from Egypt to Baltimore to meet his famous grandfather, W. J. Bryan. Reginald is traveling under the auspices of the United States postal service.

Grandson of an ex-United States Secretary of State spending his first day in the country where his grandfather ran three times for the presidency.

That's the experience of six-year-old Reginald Bryan Owen, the only grandson of William Jennings Bryan, who is staying at a local hotel.

Young Owen, the son of Major and Mrs. Ruth Bryan Owen, with his governess, Mlle. Marguerite Passot, is en route to Baltimore from his parents' home in Egypt. He is to attend school in this country.

He is traveling under the care of the United States mail service.

Major and Mrs. Owen have lived for several years in Egypt, where Major Owen was stationed as an engineering officer in the British army. During the war Major Owen served at the Dardanelles and was cited for bravery several times in the Palestine campaign afterward.

As to the relative merits of America and Egypt as places to live, Reginald still is open to conviction. When he was asked which country he would rather have for a home he replied: "I've never been in America before, so I don't know."

Reginald is with his French governess, Mlle. Marguerite Passot. They are en route from Portland, where they landed yesterday after a seventeen-day sea voyage, to Baltimore to meet Reginald's grandparents. The meeting between grandfather and grandson was to have taken place at Portland, but owing to the ill-health of Mr. and Mrs. Bryan, Reginald, who is a seasoned traveler, is going to them instead.

Reginald was mystified when questioned about baseball. But he did have something to say about football.

"I like football," he said. "I've got a football, too."

He is open to conviction as to what he's going to be when he's a man, apparently. His governess quoted him as having expressed intentions of being a naval officer, because his father is an army officer and there are no naval officers in the family. She also said he displays a great interest in engines.

15 BOY 'BANDITS' SURPRISED AT OUTLAW CAMP

Fifteen boy "bandits" who have been terrorizing Beverly and Danvers were surprised at their "outlaw" camp at Duck Pond, Beverly, where they were living in Wild Western style, and hundreds of dollars' worth of property was recovered.

The boys were arrested by Chief of Police Tucker of Beverly and Officer Edward Glidden. The specific charge is that they recently ransacked the Summer home of N. P. Gifford in North Beverly, turning twenty rooms topsy-turvy and carrying off cut glass, silverware and clothing.

YEAR FOR THREE IN HAVERHILL SHOE RIOT

Haverhill, March 7.—Following the most serious industrial riot that ever took place in this city, three men were today sentenced to a year in the House of Correction and fined $20 each. The riot occurred in front of the Austin H. Perry shoe factory.

Stones were hurled, five police officers injured, windows in the factory and in trolley cars smashed, women passengers frightened and fighting at moments became general. The twenty-five police officers who rushed to the scene were powerless to quell the mob, which numbered at least 1,500 persons.

Electric cars were held up, and the trolley line of one car was cut by mob leaders. Every window in this car was broken, and women passengers, the motorman and others badly cut with flying glass.

POLICE WAGON ATTACKED.

The windows at the front of the Perry plant were all demolished. A police patrol wagon filled with prisoners was savagely attacked and the sides were staved in.

The disturbance was the result of a long-standing fight between members of the Boot and Shoe Workers' Union and the Shoe Workers' Protective Union. The Perry factory is closed to the latter faction.

WEST ROXBURY LAD DIES IN SEAPLANE ACCIDENT

YEAR IN JAIL FOR MILL STRIKER

Lawrence Man Appeals Sentence for Assaulting Officer During Riot

Lawrence, March 7.—Savastiano Salafia, a strike sympathizer, was sentenced to a year in jail by Judge Mahoney today on a charge of assaulting Mounted Police Officer James Hewitt during a strike riot on February 21. He appealed and was held in $1,200 bail.

The sentence was by far the most severe yet meted out to strikers or their friends for disorder or violence. The policeman's nose was broken by a rock alleged to have been thrown by Salafia during a turbulent gathering in Jackson street.

On a second charge of having assaulted Sergeant James Reardon when the latter arrested him Salafia was fined $20.

The only other development in the textile strike today was the decision by Police Commissioner Peter Carr to stop the mass meeting on private property at Short and Chestnut streets tomorrow afternoon, under the riot act. The strikers say no authority exists to prevent their meeting on the lot, but the police will be ordered to be ready to disperse the crowd after the riot act has been read.

Commissioner Carr last week took the same stand regarding a meeting on the lot, but weakened before the end of the week, and on Saturday the meeting was held. He says that on no terms will he permit another meeting, as such assemblages result in disorder and come within the provisions of the statute forbidding "unpeaceful" gatherings.

Following a meeting of the strike committee today, the following statement was given out by A. J. Muste, chairman of the press committee:

"The general strike committee notes with interest that the American Woolen Mills, in addition to its regular dividends, has voted a special dividend of 10 per cent. to the common stockholders.

"We appeal to all fair-minded men to judge whether the mill owners are sincere in declaring themselves unable to give the workers an eight-hour day without reductions in pay, and also to consider what must become of a system of society which declares extra dividends to the privileged classes while workers and their families suffer from hunger."

Mr. Muste stated that the mass meeting which Alderman Peter Carr has declared against being held, would be held nevertheless unless the strikers were especially warned by Alderman Carr. Alderman Carr has stated that he would enter and break up the meeting, provided it should be held.

The President commuted the sentence to dishonorable discharge and confinement at hard labor for fifteen years at Fort Jay, N. Y.

ROBINS SAYS INTERVENTION AIDED "REDS" IN RUSSIA

Washingtoi, March 7. — Armed American intervention in Russia did much to deepen and strengthen the Bolshevik movement and to enhance the power of Lenine and Trotzky, Colonel Raymond Robins, former head of the American Red Cross mission to Russia told the Senate committee investigating lawless propaganda in the United States. Robins declared that Lenine and Trotzky and the Bolshevik government was strongly entrenched in Russia because, in his judgment they were what the vast majority of the Russian people wanted.

DEMAND LINE HONORS FOR EDWARDS

Congressman Phelan of Lynn Joins in Demand General Be Awarded Medal

Proper honors and recognition for Major-General Clarence R. Edwards, who was field commander of the 26th (Yankee) Division during the greater part of its fighting overseas, were urged by United States Senator Henry Cabot Lodge and by Congressman Michael F. Phelan of Lynn in telegrams to the Boston American today.

Senator Lodge stated that several officers junior to General Edwards in service had been passed over him and made major-generals, that this seemed "a gross injustice" and that General Edwards should be promoted to major-general in the regular line. General Edwards holds his present rank only for the duration of the war as matters stand now.

DEMAND INCREASING.

Public demand is increasing for regular line honors for the present commander of the Department of the Northeast, also for the Distinguished Service Medal to be awarded him for his gallant leadership of the 26th, which received more citations than any other National Guard division.

The Boston American wired the members of the New England senatorial and congressional delegations at Washington for opinions. Replies received so far, in addition to the one from Senator Lodge, include the following:

CONGRESSMAN MICHAEL E. PHELAN of Lynn:

Have great admiration and great affection for General Edwards. Am only too anxious to help any movement the purpose of which is to obtain all recognition for him that conditions will warrant. Believe that only way progress can be made will be by concerted movement. Furthermore, believe that return of the 26th Division will give added impetus to such a movement. Every report I get indicates the enthusiasm with which the 26th has stood behind him in the perilous days of war and will stand behind him now that the war is over.

CONGRESSMAN GEORGE HOLDEN TINKHAM of Boston:

It is inexplicable that General Edwards has not been decorated when decorations have been distributed so lavishly. His record and that of the 26th Division, both in length of service and accomplishments, have been most dazzling. By all means General Edwards should be decorated as the leader of the valiant 26th Division, as a general of uncommon military accomplishments and gentleman of distinction.

CONGRESSMAN EDWARD H. WASON of Nashua, N. H.:

I am heartily in favor of honors for General Edwards and will be very glad to do all I can in the matter.

MISS WHITE, MUSICIAN, WEDS LIEUT. WHITNEY

Before joining the army he was connected with the Second National Bank of Nashua.

Promote Gen. Edwards, Urges Senator Lodge

By SENATOR HENRY CABOT LODGE.

Washington, March 7.—General Edwards stood at the head of the list of brigadier generals of the army when the war broke out. Since then several officrs junior to him in service and of less distinction have been passed over him and made major generals:

To me this seems a gross injustice. He ought to receive his promotion to major general in the regular line. He ought also to receive proper honors and recognition. He has shown himself an admirable soldier, has commanded his division with great success and is beloved by all his men. I am in full accord with the belief that he ought to receive the promotion in the Regular Army which is his due and that he ought to be honored as he deserves.

"GUNMAN" GETS SIX MONTHS IN JAIL

Robert G. O'Brien, nineteen years old, giving his address as No. 230 West 132nd street, New York city, was arraigned before Judge Day in the South Boston Court today, charged with carrying a loaded revolver and with violation of the railroad laws.

He pleaded not guilty to the first charge, but was found guilty and was sentenced to six months in the House of Correction. He appealed. On the second charge he was fined $5, which he paid.

O'Brien was one of the alleged six gunmen caught in the roundhouse of the First street railroad yard of the New Haven railroad early Saturday morning by railroad police. All but O'Brien escaped. O'Brien's record shows a five-year sentence in Elmira, N. Y., for robbery, of which he has served only a little more than a year.

COL. ROOSEVELT ANXIOUS TO GET OUT OF SERVICE

New York, March 7.—The first thing Lieutenant-Colonel Theodore Roosevelt wants is to get out of his uniform. Colonel Roosevelt, when asked at the transport pier what his plans for the future were, replied: "My only plans for the immediate future are to get out of my uniform as soon as the War Department will allow me to do so."

SALES DEMONSTRATION AT BOSTON Y. M. C. A.

At the session of the Salesmanship Class at the B. Y. M. C. Union, George L. C. Poore of the educational department of William Filene's Sons Company, delivered the principle address, speaking on "Salesmanship," with a sales demonstration.

MISS MORTIMER DENIES BLAME IN AUTO DEATH

New York, March 7.—"Sorry" she killed two men, but not to blame, was the plea today of Miss Edith Mortimer of Wheatley Hills, L. I., on trial here for manslaughter. She is accused of causing the death of two men while driving her automobile last October.

Miss Mortimer was a witness today in her own defence. For the first time during the trial she displayed emotion. Dressed in a dark blue coat suit, white waist, small black straw hat, flowing brown veil, and light tan scarf, she sat huddled in her chair. Before going on the stand she made this statement:

"Of course I am sorry because of these deaths. I have not driven a car since, and I do not believe that I ever shall. But I am not to blame."

She is formally charged with the death of Nathan Wasserberger of Maspeth, L. I. In the same accident, Morris De Mato also was killed.

Evidence brought out that Miss Mortimer swerved her car sharply to the left to avoid running into a truck. In doing so, she ran down the two men, it is alleged.

MORE AMERICAN FISH STORES FOR NEW ENGLAND CITIES

FIVE-CENT MARTS ARE CROWDED

Great Endorsement by Public Rewards Undertaking With Success

amount, 5,667,046 pounds were delivered by the fishing ships, and the remainder by owners of small boats, and by rail or steamship from other cities.

The price to the fishermen remains low, and many owners are taking their entire catch to Gloucester for curing. Hundreds of thousands of pounds of fish are going into cold storage. In the corresponding week in 1918 there came into Boston only 3,840,370 pounds, and the average weekly delivery is about 2,000,000 pounds of fish.

NEW STORES OPENED.

Fish for Lawrence, Lowell, Haverhill and Nashua!

Boston American fish stores selling cod, haddock, Boston bluefish, herring, finnan haddie, whiting and flounders at 6 cents a pound opened today in these cities.

Here's where the people of these cities may buy fish at cost and fool the profiteers:

Lowell—No. 135 Page street.

Haverhill—Chicago Market, No. 175 Merrimac street.

Nashua, N. H.—The Big Value Food Store, Railroad square.

Lawrence—No. 163 Oak street.

The opening of these new stores was marked by these features:

1. Early rush of delighted customers.
2. Frantic effort of local fish dealers to meet the situation by cutting their regular prices on fish from five to fifteen cents a pound, thereby betraying the profiteering that had been practised upon the public.
3. Emphatic praise of the Boston American's enterprise in providing fish-at-cost.

LONG LINE OF CUSTOMERS.

In Lawrence there was a long line of customers waiting for the store to open. Many textile strikers were in the line. Business opened with a rush.

The same was true in Haverhill and Lowell. The opening of the stores on the first Friday in Lent was regarded as particularly timely.

In Nashua, N. H., one hundred pounds of fish were sold in the first three hours of business. The Boston American's fish store, at the Big Value Food Store in Railroad square, was crowded. A. W. Merriam was in charge of the fish mart. Fish has been high in Nashua. There have been hundreds of persons out of work.

Despite the sudden cuts in price announced by the local dealers the public flocked to the American stores. Although the local dealers slashed prices, in some cases as much as 15 cents in the pound, they did not meet the American price scale of six cents a pound on all varieties of fish. Even where they did meet it the public seemed to prefer the American stores. So there was scant fish trade for the locals.

There are 20,000 pounds more waiting to supply these cities. If this second 20,000 pounds is sold today there will be 20,000 more—a hundred thousand more if necessary—ready tomorrow.

WILL SUPPLY MORE CITIES.

Having opened nine stores around Boston the American is today making the first step towards furnishing the people of other sections fish at cost. The fish which is selling in Boston American Fish Stores in Boston for five cents a pound will be sold in places ten miles or more from the city for six cents, the extra cent being used to defray the charges of transportation.

The opening of these new stores will not interfere in any way with the continuance of the American stores in Boston. Fish will be sold daily and Saturday nights in the Boston stores for five cents a pound.

People of Lowell, Lawrence, Haverhill and Nashua, follow the example of the thrifty folks of South Boston, Lynn, Everett, Charlestown, East Boston, Cambridge and Roxbury, who are buying practically all their food at Boston American Fish Stores, eating fish daily and saving money.

BUSINESS IS BOOMING.

Although a full dozen stores have now been opened by the American in half as many days, and thousands of families are daily buying tons of fish, the American has not ceased its plans for circling all New England with stores to sell fish to the people at cost. Business at the stores now opened has increased steadily day by day. Truck loads of fish are being rushed hourly to the various stores, and even then the stores can hardly supply the demand.

That the American was able to keep its word and open stores today in Nashua and in Haverhill was largely due to the kindness of two patriotic food dealers, each of whom offered the American the use of their stores and facilities.

The Big Value Food Store in Railroad square, Nashua, N. H., and N. Bornstein of the Chicago Market, No. 175 Merrimack street, Haverhill, were among the first of the throng of public-spirited food dealers to offer stores free to the American. The proprietors of both these places also gave their services in securing help for the stores and in superintending the sale of the fish.

Plans are being made now to open other stores in the vicinity of Boston early next week. Stores are planned for several sections of Dorchester, in Roxbury, Brighton, Brookline Village, Somerville and Medford, Quincy, Worcester, Gardner, Holyoke, Framingham, Marlboro, Providence and Pawtucket are also scheduled for stores in the near future.

PLAN WASHINGTON ST. STORE.

Perhaps the most vitally important to Boston are the plans now being formulated for selling the fish in a store on Washington street in the heart of the shopping district. Details of this will be given later.

Now that the problem of out-of-town transportation has been solved, and public-minded citizens are flocking to give the American the use of stores, the chief problem before the Boston American Fish Stores is to secure labor. In hiring men to wait on the thousands of customers which storm the stores each day preference has been given to discharged service men with some experience in the fish business. There are a number of openings for such men today, and as the chain of Boston American Fish Stores is extended, there will be many others. Men of the description given are invited to write to the Fish Editor, Boston American, if possible giving a telephone number where they can be reached, if they wish employment.

Residents of all sections of New England should watch the American daily for announcement of stores being opened in their vicinity.

It should be remembered that the fish being sold at five cents a pound in the Boston American Fish Stores is frozen fish. It is the same fish which unscrupulous retailers thaw and sell as fresh fish at several hundred per cent. profit. In order to thaw it properly it should be bought a day ahead and thawed overnight. Instructions for properly thawing the fish are given with the fish.

PROFITEERS PANIC-STRICKEN.

These instructions should be followed to get the best results:

The American's stores' fish was frozen almost as soon as it was out of the water. It is therefore actually fresher than much so-called "fresh fish" sold at high rates by dealers, as the latter has often been caught a fortnight or more before being landed. It is often kept a week or more by the dealer before being sold.

The success of the Boston American Fish Stores has caused a panic in the retail fish business of Metropolitan Boston. It will cause a panic today in the retail markets of Lowell, Lawrence, Haverhill and Nashua, N. H.

Retail fish prices have dropped like meteors in the last two days in Boston. The profiteering retailer, realizing that palmy days of robbing the public is over through the efforts of the Boston American, has dropped his prices in an attempt to meet the competition of the Boston American stores, which, however, continue to undersell him.

Patronize the nearest Boston American fish store. Buy your fish for tomorrow's dinner today. Eat fish every day. Be a profiteer killer!

SPLIT MENACES RANKS OF THE G. O. P.

Control of Mann Resented; Men Picked to Head Committees Assailed

Washington, March 7. — The first definite rumblings of a Republican factional storm brewing for the next House have been heard. Representative Nicholas Longworth of Ohio, son-in-law of the late Colonel Roosevelt, issued a statement assailing the committee on committees now working out the Republican organization.

Longworth's statement plainly is aimed at the domination of the committee by Representative Mann of Illinois, defeated candidate for speaker. Mann is running things in the committee in his own way, and the Gillett adherents are on the point of rebellion.

Had the plans of the Gillett faction gone through Mr. Longworth would have been chairman of the Ways and Means Committee or floor leader.

Mr. Longworth was one of the leading supporters of Representative Gillett for speaker. He is one of the few Gillett men on the committee on committees. If he carries out his intention to take the fight into the caucus, Republican harmony and solidarity will be seriously jeopardized.

"Our progress has been backward instead of forward, backward to the days of so-called Cannonism, and then some,' says Mr. Longworth. "Mr. Speaker Cannon was an exponent of the seniority rule, but he justified it by frequent exceptions in the interest of efficiency. He never appointed chairmen of important committees, whom he believed to be obviously unfit.

"We have none of these things. We have followed the seniority rule to the letter. We have selected as chairman of every important committee the man who happened to stand first on the list, whether he was fit or obliviously unfit. This sort of leadership is not what the Republicans of the country have the right to expect."

Diamond Ring Thrown in Garbage Can Is Recovered

Mrs. Rose Mindeck of No. 55 Deering road, Mattapan, is rejoicing over the recovery of a diamond ring valued at $350, which was returned to her by the police after having been accidentally thrown into the family garbage can and removed to Commercial Point, Dorchester, for shipment down the harbor.

Mrs. Mindeck left three valuable rings on the pantry shelf while making bread. She accidentally swept them up with some crumbs and tossed them in the garbage can. The can was emptied in a garbage contractor's wagon operated by Michael Rooney of No. 73 Gibson street, Dorchester.

When Mrs. Mindeck missed her property she called up Captain James E. Walkins of Station 19. A search revealed the most valuable of the three rings in a pile of garbage at Commercial Point. The two remaining rings were not found.

IF KIDNEYS AND BLADDER BOTHER

Take Salts to flush Kidneys and neutralize irritating acids.

Kidney and Bladder weakness result from uric acid, says a noted authority. The kidneys filter this acid from the blood and pass it on to the bladder, where it often remains to irritate and inflame, causing a burning, scalding sensation, or setting up an irritation at the neck of the bladder, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night. The sufferer is in constant dread, the water passes sometimes with a scalding sensation and is very profuse; again, there is difficulty in voiding it.

Bladder weakness, most folks call it, because they can't control urination. While it is extremely annoying and sometimes very painful, this is really one of the most simple ailments to overcome. Get about four ounces of Jad Salts from your pharmacist and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast, continuing this for two or three days. This will neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer is a source of irritation to the bladder and urinary organs, which then act normally again.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless, and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is used by thousands of folks who are subject to urinary disorders caused by uric acid irritation. Jad Salts is splendid for kidneys and causes no bad effects whatever.

WOMAN IN LOVE SUIT TELLS OF KISSES

marry me brought about the end. "For many years we have enjoyed a brotherandsister friendship, nothing more."

Miss Lynch, an operative in a Marlboro shoe factory, told the judge and jury of a long courtship, in which she waited with hope constantly deferred, only to be finally jilted by her middle-aged lover. She described how in their happier days the now married night watchman lavished upon her lobster suppers and chowder spreads, and how his generosity even extended to her distant relatives, whom he used to shower with gifts at Christmas time.

A trousseau representing years of patient needle work and a considerable cash investment is stored in her sister's house, she said, and she was plentifully supplied with linen, china and glassware in anticipation of the wedding which never occurred.

EAGER WOOER IN YOUTH.

Pomphrey's story was decidedly different from that of his accuser. He drew an unusual picture in which he was the eager wooer in his youth, but was denied by Miss Lynch because of her aged parents. Then in middle age his ardor cooled, he admitted, and there was a reversal of the tables, because his parents were now old and unable to take care of themselves.

At this time, Pomphrey said, he and his former sweetheart had an understanding to the effect that their relations would in the future be that of friends—"good friends, with no thought of marriage." His conscience did not reproach him in the least, he declared, for marrying twenty-three-year-old Anne Roach of Marlboro.

Pomphrey stamped the declaration of his former sweetheart to the effect that he had bought and furnished a home for her at one time as untrue. "She never knew I had a house until I had it all furnished," he declared. "She was not consulted in the furnishing of it, as would have been the case if I had been making a home for a bride. I borrowed $1,800 of the $1,800 I paid for it from my brother."

The defendant in the love suit declared that one thing the plaintiff said was true—namely, that he had given her and members of her family hundreds of dollars in the twenty-two years of their acquaintance.

He is being sued for $10,000, but declared in court that outside of his house he has little of value but three Liberty Bonds.

THEATRE PARTY FOR 'L' NEWS GIRLS

The one hundred and forty news girls who sell you your American every day at the various Elevated, Subway and Tunnel stands are to be the guests of the American at the Park Square Theatre on March 11 and 12 to witness the stirring presentation of "The Crowded Hour."

This little theatre party has been coming to the girls for more than a week, and they are looking forward to it with keen anticipation. They want particularly to see Allan Dinehart, "the Apollo of the American stage." You can't blame the girls, either, for Allan Dinehart has qualified for the role of the modern Adonis at the recent meeting of the National Association of Merchant Tailors.

The leading man of "The Crowded Hour" is a "perfect 36"; that is to say, he would be if he were a cloak-model. Being a mere man he can only qualify for the honor as "physically perfect," according to the measurements given out by the men's fashion-making body of the United States.

"The Crowded Hour" was chosen by the girls as being the most appealing and most popular show now running at any Boston Theatre. It is the kind of a show that every girl wants to see because it deals with the redemption of a girl's soul. There isn't a community which does not have its "Peggy Lawrence."

To be exact, there will be two "Crowded Hour" parties. Seventy news-girls will be present at the Park Square on Tuesday, the 11th, and the remaining seventy on the following Wednesday, the 12th.

And the girls will be right down in front, too. Only orchestra seats are good enough for the girls who sell the Boston American. And the American never does things by halves, either, if you have noticed. The girls are employed by the Hotel and Railroad News Company.

"The Crowded Hour" has experienced a phenomenal reception in both Chicago and New York, and is acclaimed —"the greatest literary achievement in recent years." It is the work of Edgar Selwyn and Channing Pollock, both playwrights of established reputation.

SIX ONE-MAN CARS IN WALTHAM SERVICE

One-man cars were inaugurated for the first time today on the Middlesex & Boston Railroad when six new cars of this kind were tried out in Waltham. They are the first in the State. Others to be in operation, and already shipped to the towns where they will be used, are one at Concord, for travel between Concord and Maynard.

MISS JEAN BRAE, of "The Crowded Hour" company, who will assist in entertaining the "L" news girls when they attend the Tuesday and Wednesday performances at the Park Square Theatre as guests of the American.

GIRL INDICTED IN SLAYING OF POLICEMAN

GANG VISITS CHELSEA.

In the course of their investigations they had occasion to question Paeff regarding his knowledge of the stolen machines. Paeff, rightly declared himself ignorant of how they came there. He said he had not been in the garage since Christmas and suggested the officers search his premises in Lynn. Paeff made the fatal error of discussing that matter with some person who knew the real thief and who related the conversation to them.

Thh thieves investigated and found the machines gone. At once they suspected that Paeff had stolen them and was using the story of a police recovery to cover his act. The following day another machine was stolen and taken to the same garage. That was the day Deininger was murdered. That night the thieves met in Scollay square. One of them knew all about the cars being gone from the Chelsea garage and had the idea that Paeff was responsible.

He suggested a trip over to ascertain if the car that had been placed there that afternoon was gone. In his overcoat pocket was a revolver with a single bullet in it. Colonna's car was secured and the trip made to Chelsea, starting soon after eight o'clock. They arrived in a comparatively short time.

SLAYER MAKES ESCAPE.

Two men left Colonna's car while the other remained in the machine with the chauffeur. The door of the garage was opened. One of the men entered quickly, the other lagged a few steps behind. Suddenly, this other man heard sounds of a struggle and then shots. He saw his companion, clad in the long fur coat, dash out and run in the direction of Btachmont. He wheeled and ran in the opposite direction.

Colonna started his machine with the third member of the band yet in it. He spurred up while revolver shots whistled close at hand and made his way back to Boston and to his stand. Meanwhile, the slayer continued his run and escaped in safety. During his flight, he paused at the home of a man he knew, and there changed his long fur coat for a brown cloth coat.

His hand, which had been cut during the fight, he wound with a handkerchief, and after leaving the home of the man where he secured the coat, he accosted a Chelsea police officer and asked directions toward the car line. Securing these he boarded a car, returned through the tunnel to Boston and went to the South End, where he had a room. Somewhere, just where it is not known yet, he buried the revolver from which the single shot was fired.

The other man who had left the machine with him ran through several streets, made his way to the car line and continued on to Boston. It wasn't until the early editions of the papers were on the street that he started for his home. And it wasn't until then that he learned that the man with whom his pal had the scuffle was a policeman, Deininger, rather than Paeff. Nor until then did he know that murder had been done.

He returned to his home that morning only to be taken into custody later. The chauffeur, after dropping his freight in Boston, remained in Bowdoin square for a time, then went to his home in Revere. From that city he telephoned the Boston police what he had done. His arrest and detention on a murder charge followed. The man he had driven back to Boston was later arrested on the same charge.

Information was secured by Special Officer Joseph Mattey which led the police in the direction of a Columbus avenue house where Marion O'Brien had her apartment. It was known that she was a friend of Herman Barney who was wanted in the case. The officers found that the man they sought had gone to her home following the crime. They watched for a time and finally arrested her.

That same night, following her arrest, the man they wanted entered the house, but at once left it and escaped arrest. He was later located and arrested, however.

FOREST FIRES COST BAY STATE $200,000 IN 1918

Worcester, March 7.—Forest fires cost Massachusetts $200,000 in 1918 according to reports of fire wardens attending the annual meeting of State fire wardens. M. C. Hutchins of Boston, chief warden, advocated more stringent regulations for forest fire prevention. He said there was more of a spirit of co-operation between State officials and owners of woodlands than ever before.

Devens Commander Scouts Discrimination, Stating Men Are Educated at Camp

By THOMAS F. PHELAN.

Camp Devens, Ayer, March 7.—Declaring he is the friend of the colored soldiers and wants to do what is right by them, Major-General McCain, in charge of this cantonment, has made a personal investigation of their complaints and found many of them unfounded.

His attention was directed to a letter sent to the American by the men, who are connected with the 443d Reserve Labor Battalion, in which it was stated that they "have been tagged with red, white, green and yellow tags for the last month."

He said if the men felt they ought not to wear such tags, which were given them merely as markers for the line of work to which they are assigned, he will remedy this complaint.

EDUCATED AT CAMP.

Touching on another complaint of the men, that they are compelled to attend a school recently started in Hut No. 20 of the Young Men's Christian Association, he said they appreciated this school.

He said since the school was started many of the men, who heretofore could not write their name, are now able to and express pride in signing the payroll and sending letters home to their folks.

A telegram from the War Department received here today calls attention to the fact that enlisted men honorably discharged from the army will receive five cents a mile from the place of his discharge to his "actual bonafide home or residence or original muster into service."

MANY CASES UNPAID.

The military authorities are concerned over the alleged thefts of money belonging to patients at the Base Hospital. Despite the fact that these occurred as long ago as last August, the amounts, in many cases, still remain unpaid. It is believed that nearly all of the thousands of soldiers who died during the months that the influenza epidemic raged, were robbed.

When an audit disclosed the amount of the deficit the base hospital post exchange council voted $3,000 from its profits to be used in repaying former patients or the estates of former patients.

MAY SEND IRISH COMMITTEE TO PARIS

Meeting to Choose Delegates to Submit Plea to Conference in Session in New York

New York, March 7.—The committee which last Tuesday night asked President Wilson to present Ireland's claims at the peace conference met here today to consider sending a delegation direct to the peace conference in Paris.

"The idea of sending a committee to plead Ireland's cause has been under consideration for some time," said Frank P. Walsh just before going into the meeting. "The plan has not been considered officially by the committee, but it undoubtedly will be."

In conversation with the President on the subject last Tuesday, Walsh asked if the President would use his influence to gain a hearing for such a committee, but he stated that an immediate answer was not necessary. Concerning the President's refusal to see Justice Daniel F. Cohalan, Mr. Walsh said:

"Without reflecting on the President and without questioning the right or the good taste of his action, I think the effect will be to make Justice Cohalan the most popular and potential leader of the Irish in America."

Thompson and Senator-elect David I. Walsh.

FAIR PLAY FOR MAGAZINE IS HARVARD CRY

The "Magazine explosions" at Harvard College brought an aftermath of wrath today. "Vested interests" were blamed.

The wrath was directed against the perpetrators of what has become known as Harvard Magazine No. 1, which was issued Wednesday in a satirical effort to take the wind out of the sails of Harvard Magazine No. 2, which was issued yesterday as previously scheduled.

It was reported today that Harvard Magazine No. 3, which was advertised around Harvard square for issue next Monday, with a yellow cover, would be abandoned.

The general demand today was for fair play for the recognized Harvard Magazine No. 2 of yesterday's issue. Edmund Pavenstedt and Robert Lloyd, managers respectively of the Harvard hockey and baseball teams, said in communications in today's issue of the Harvard Crimson:

"It seems pitiable that in a university such as Harvard a new publication of evident literary merit cannot be brought to light without a most unfair attack being made upon it by certain narrow-minded editors of the established literary organ. * * * Surely dishonest competition, anonymously conducted, discloses a moribund state of affairs. * * * It is merely another attempt by the 'vested interests' to stifle literary activity in the university."

The Crimson said editorially undergraduate sentiment would not countenance such methods.

MAYOR HEADS SECTION IN CHARITY DRIVE

Contributions ranging from $1 to $1,500 have already been received in the drive for the Boston Dispensary, Baby Hygiene Association and District Nursing Association, it was announced today. The campaign for $270,000 does not formally open until Monday. Twenty-eight teams, some of them numbering more than 200 workers, will canvass. Each group has for its chairman a person well known. Mayor Andrew J. Peters is chairman of the Jamaica Plain and Forest Hills section. The $1,500 subscription was sent in by Mr. and Mrs. Henry Hornblower of Arlington, who are at Pinehurst, N. C.

If Gas Company Is Overcharging, Write to the American

So many glaring inconsistencies in the prices charged for gas in Greater Boston have come to the notice of the American, that this newspaper invites its readers to write to this office if they believe they have been subjected to unjust charges by local gas companies.

These letters should not be merely complaints. They should be accompanied by monthly statements from the company to back up the writers' charges.

CLAIM PLOT TO DRIVE HEALERS FROM STATE

Providence, March 7.—Physicians have been asked to endorse the bill before the General Assembly to define the "practice of medicine" as a result of protests from Christian Science advocates and other cults.

The bill which was introduced by Representative Zurlinden, calls for the placing of all cults under the supervision of the State Board of Health. Christian Science leaders who say the bill is the creation of the physicians who are now asked to create a sentiment for the passage of the measure and claim a plot to drive non-medical cults out of business by placing them under the supervision of the State Board of Health.

A prominent Science practitioner says:

"As a matter of fact this bill was introduced by Representative Zurlinden at the instance of a leader of the House of Representatives. The idea is to place all cults under the jurisdiction of the State Board of State, which body can then decide whether or not they are practicing medicine if they accept pay for their services. Now they ask the physicians, who are responsible for the measure, to come forward and create a demand for its passage.

BREAK NEGOTIATIONS OVER FOOD FOR GERMANS

London, March 7.—Negotiations over supplying Germany with food, which have been in progress between the armistice commissions at Spa, have been broken off, said a Central News dispatch from Berlin today. The allies, it was said, demanded the unconditional surrender of the entire German-American merchant ship fleet, without guaranteeing Germany any food supplies.

BOSTON WOMAN PRESSES PHONE FIGHT

By International News Service.

Washington, March 7.—Julia O'Connor, carrying the complaint of the Boston telephone and telegraph operators to Postmaster-General Burleson, was in Washington today, opening numerous telegrams from all sections of the country assuring her that the local organizations are backing her in her fight to compel Postmaster-General Burleson to take action in the settlement of agreements between the companies and the operators.

A delegation of girls from Buffalo, headed by Mrs. Molter, also is here to convince Mr. Burelson of their right to organize, alleging that any attempt to do so brings discharge from the Buffalo companies. The delegates cite the Wichita, Kansas, case where unorganized girls asking for increases in salary were discharged.

"Mr. Burleson's attitude and actions foster Bolshevism," asserted John J. Purcell, at the office of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers today. "By his neglect in handling the situation conservative leaders are wiped out and radicals are given full sway. More than 135,000 workers are ready to strike and this office cannot avert the impending strike. The workers will either quit the companies or this organization and therefore we must help them out."

The chief trouble, Purcell said, was in the failure of Mr. Burleson to settle the differences between the companies and the operators when agreements, which had been made at the beginning of the war, terminated.

INSURE AGAINST WAR IS KAHN'S SLOGAN

Universal military training, not the proposed League of Nations, is the solution of America's future international problems, according to Congressman Julius Kahn of California. Congressman Kahn was guest of honor at the Boston City Club.

Wars are inevitable, the speaker declared; the fighting instinct is "a permanent element" in human nature. The proper way to secure peace at home is to drive out the I. W. W. and the Bolsheviki.

Referring to the oft-heard comment that this was "the last war," Congressman Kahn said:

"In my humble judgment the millennium has not yet dawned. Man is a fighting animal. He cannot help it. He was born that way. In all the cosmos the rule of the survival of the fittest is the rule that prevails, and we must make our country the fittest. Proposals for disarmament will not solve the problem.

UNIVERSAL TRAINING.

"The solution of our problem is the universal military training of our youth, and that does not mean militarism. On the contrary, it means an insurance that will prevent any nation or combination of nations from trying conclusions with the United States of America. Our proper military policy would be a small standing army, though we shall have to have regular soldiers in our insular possessions and elsewhere. Having been selected as chairman of the Committee on Military Affairs, it will be my pleasure, and it is my hope, that I may be able to write this legislation upon the statute books of our country."

"We hear much about the League of Nations. I want to say that the American people will never consent to abate in any particular the Monroe Doctrine. It is the part of wisdom for the American people to try to evolve some plan whereby we can measurably prevent war.

SUGGESTIONS TO TAFT.

"I suggested to ex-President Taft that the plenipotentiaries should agree that on the western hemisphere the United States should have the hegemony of all the nations, so that if trouble arose we could invite the A B C States of South America to co-operate with us and with any other States we desired to call in. I also suggested that in Europe, England, France and Italy can be chosen to take the lead, not only for that continent, but also for the continent of Africa. I suggested that in Asia Japan and China should be allowed to work out Asiatic problems. Under that system Americans would never have to be drafted to be sent into Armenia, the Balkans or Russia."

TRY THIS FOR ECONOMY

"Conserving," "Economy" and "Thrift" are the present-day watchwords, and well they may be! Are you conserving your health? Are you economical in buying treatment for disease? You should be! If your stomach, liver, kidneys, bowels and blood are not right in every sense you should at once being a treatment to restore good, healthy conditions. Sulphur, cream of tartar and herb extracts in a sugar-coated form, called Sulpherb Tablets, is the surest relief that is economical. Get them in sealed tubes from druggists. Sulpherb is the name—not "sulphur." Mrs. J. J. Devlin, 518 W. 152nd St., New York City, writes: "I would also like to say I find your Sulpherb Tablets O. K., and am very much pleased to recommend to all my friends, etc."—Advertisement.

HEROES REJECT FOOD SERVED ON VEDIC

Packages of ice-cream and cake were given the boys by Y. M. C. A. workers and smokes by the K. of C.

Major John T. Rowe, senior line officer in charge of the troops, declared that the boys' kicks were only the natural grouch of the soldiers the world over. He minimized the complaints and declared that they were not justified.

While the Vedic is not the finest transport in the service, he concluded, still the troops were given comfortable quarters and the food was clean and wholesome.

PRAISES BREST CAMP.

"Brest is the best camp in France," today declared Lieutenant-Colonel Ben Hicks Metcalf, a former Winthrop physician, who arrived on the Vedic.

"Brest is the best military camp I was ever in. At one time, however, it was not so good as at present, but conditions there are simply splendid now," he said.

Lieutenant-Colonel Metcalf was met at the pier by his wife and daughter Carolyn, and his mother, Mrs. A. H. Hastings from Meadville, Penn.

Corporal Ben de Barry, a Distinguished Service and Croix de Guerre man, who preceded Lieutenant-Colonel Metcalf home, and who is the Metcalf chauffeur, greeted him at the pier.

Chauffeur de Barry was cited for bravery in action for holding his machine gun position in the Argonne Forest when all of his companions were either dead or had fled.

Corporal Richard Metcalf, a son of Colonel Metcalf was killed in action at the battle of Chateau Thierry.

One of the first men off the transport was Harold L. Harvey of Headquarters Company, son of Mr. and Mrs. James A. Harvey of No. 312 Warren avenue, Brockton.

Harvey had been in France for eight months and saw service at Harricourt. He had with him a French bulldog which has been the mascot of the Headquarters Company. The dog, named "Buck," in honors of Private Buck Freeman, a private of Headquarters Company, killed in action, was a dispatch carrier in the French army.

26TH CASUALS ABOARD.

Two hundred New England men, casuals of the famous 26th Division and members of the 54th and 55th C. A. C., were among the heroes landed by the transport.

The first unit off the transport after it docked at 8:15 was Battery A, 54th Coast Artillery Corps. This Maine unit was followed by Battery B of the 54th.

As the soldiers filed down on the pier they were greeted by "Hail, Hail, the Gang's All Here," played by the Commonwealth Pier Band. Fifty Red Cross nurses released dozens of little red, white and blue balloons, also enthusiastic cheers. At the pier end of the gangplank stood a delegation of civilians from Portland, Me., ready with first home greetings for the returning soldiers of the Pine Tree State.

HERO ORDERED FROM PIER.

A spectacular incident occurred just as the debarkation began. On the pier was Sergeant Harry E. Owen of Portland, Me., hero of the Canadian army, who has been twice wounded, in addition to being shell-shocked. He still suffers from the effects of the shell-shock.

Sergeant Owen had no pass to the pier. Major Hickey, U. S. A., ordered Owen from the pier. Owen refused to leave.

Major Hickey ordered two men in his command to remove Owen. There was a struggle. A sergeant and squad of men were summoned. The pier sergeant drew his revolver, removed the safety clip and pointed the revolver at Owen. Major Hickey instantly ordered the pier sergeant to put up his revolver, which the sergeant did. Then Owen was removed from the pier by the combined efforts of five soldiers.

As soon as Battery A of the 54th received the formal greetings of the Portland delegation the men were marched toward the land, the special trains awaiting them.

GIVEN BREAKFAST BY Y. M. C. A.

But before they boarded the trains they received newspapers and breakfast. Twenty-five copies of the Boston American and other newspapers were passed out to the soldiers by Mrs. A. H. Damon of New York and Miss Frances McLaughlin of Boston, workers in the War Camp Community Service. The soldiers were tickled with the acounts of their home-coming, especially those which showed pictures of themselves, like one on the front page of the American.

The first shore breakfast for the soldiers was distributed by a squad of Y. M. C. A. workers. They received coffee, sandwiches, turnovers and ice cream.

CHEERED AS THEY ENTRAINED.

A thunderous welcome greeted the soldiers as they entrained for Camp Devens. The crowd which watched the disembarkation was unusually large, attracted by the large percentage of Massachusetts boys who are numbered in the 54th C. A. C. or in the 324th Casualty Company.

The carrying of small American flags and the singing of "The Star Spangled Banner" by hundreds in the crowd were unusual features of a debarkation here.

The men were lined up inside the pier for roll call, and then passed on to the further end of the structure for cigarettes, hot coffe, cakes, box lunches, ice cream and telegram blanks, handed out by the various relief organizations.

Before leaving for Hartford, General Clarence R. Edwards appointed Major Maurice Cook and Michael J. Moore of his staff to represent him in welcoming the boys of the 26th Division aboard the Vedic.

As the troop trains were passing by the Readville car shops in Dedham they were slowed down while committees from the shops boarded and distributed cigarettes, cigars, candy and money.

MUSCULAR WRITING FOR LOCAL SCHOOLS

The left centre picture shows how the pen is held under the new style of penmanship. There is no gripping of the pen. Instead it is held gracefully. On the right centre the photograph depicts the old cramped way of holding a pen. Below on left is a sample of the new style writing. On the right is a sample of the old kind of penmanship.

Better penmanship for boys and girls. No more tired muscles in writing and daily "compositions." No more cramped signatures and jerky addresses.

One of the three R's is going to be better taught in Boston schools. In the future, when great men sign their names to letters, it isn't going to be necessary for their secretaries to type the name underneath.

All this will follow, once the new system of teaching writing is introduced into the public schools. Superintendent Frank V. Thompson declares that scribbling will be a thing of the past. The new method introduces the "muscular movement."

It completely takes the place of the old-time finger movement. Nowadays little Johnny can't write his name without twisting his tongue in sympathetic gyrations. When he writes from the forearm his tongue will be able to relax. Little Mary, when she writes laborious script, puts her head so close to the desk that her blue eyes cross.

No more eye strain; no more crooked backs. The new method calls for an upright position, with head high, feet resting easily on the floor, and fingers lightly closed on pen or pencil—not clutched in a strangle grip.

The innovation has been introduced into the Bowdoin School under direction of Miss Martha T. O'HEA, assistant supervisor. Miss O'Hea is in charge of all penmanship classes at the school. The system introduces arm movements that call unused muscles into play, and result in graceful curves and fluent motions.

The basic principle of the new system is that all the arm muscles are called into requisition. The pupil rests his forearm on the desk, with the soft flesh just below the elbow as a cushion. The hand is moved from this point, not from the wrist. The fingers are not allowed to pinch the pencil; they hold it lightly. The major part of the effort comes from the arm, not from the wrist or fingers.

When properly practiced, this method results in a much more flowing and less cramped hand than the old method. Furtherfore, the writer does not so easily tire. The muscles are developed, but without fatigue, and in time, say sponsors of the new system, the writing can become much more rapid.

GERMANS PLAYED UP BRITISH STRIKE AS REVOLT

London, March 7.—A wireless dispatch from Berne today revealed that the German foreign office issued a daily statement during the recent strike troubles in Great Britain, concocting them in such a way as to give an impression that a revolution was imminent which would make it impossible to enforce vigorous peace terms on Germany.

TWO BOYS ARRESTED FOR STEALING SHOES

Charged with the larceny of four pairs of shoes valued at $15.75, the property of William Bradley of Broadway, Chelsea, Arthur Levenson of Blue Hill avenue and Joseph Cohen, nineteen, of Gaston street, Roxbury, were arrested today by Chelsea officers.

N. Y. HARBOR STRIKERS TO AGREE TO SETTLEMENT

New York, March 7.—The first sign of a break in the great harbor strike, which has tied up the port, came today. It was announced by the strike leaders that they had decided to accept the settlement proposal of the railroad administration "with certain minor modifications." If the union amendments are agreed to, about 40 per cent. of the 16,000 strikers will return to work on Monday, enabling 12,000 longshoremen who were forced into idleness to resume also.

CHILD GETS SICK CROSS, FEVERISH IF CONSTIPATED

Look at tongue! Then give fruit laxative for stomach, liver, bowels.

"California Syrup of Figs" can't harm children and they love it.

A laxative today saves a sick child tomorrow. Children simply will not take the time from play to empty their bowels, which become clogged up with waste, liver gets sluggish; stomach sour.

Look at the tongue, mother! If coated, or your child is listless, cross, feverish, breath bad, restless, doesn't eat heartily, full of cold or has sore throat or any other children's ailment, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," then don't worry, because it is perfectly harmless, and in a few hours all this constipation poison, sour bile and fermenting waste will gently move out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again. A thorough "inside cleansing" is ofttimes all that is necessary. It should be the first treatment given in any sickness.

Beware of counterfeit fig syrups. Ask your druggist for a bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly printed on the bottle. Look carefully and see that it is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company."—Advertisement.

ALLEGED DRUG TRAFFICKERS ARRESTED

One Taken at Gun Point in Somerville Alley After Sale Is Made

cer Welch, who successfully impersonated a drug addict and managed to get himself accepted as a confirmed "hoppie" on a "dope-buying" trip.

For some time the police have suspected that drug addicts were meeting at night from time to time in Scollay square and were being guided to Cambridge for the sale of habit-forming drugs. Special Officers Welch and Manning of Court square police station and William Scanlon of the Federal "drug squad" have been working to break up this practice.

Quantities of morphine and other drugs have been brought into the city of late. Some of it is smuggled over the Canadian boundary. It is said that vessels arriving from England are used as carriers by drug smugglers.

Special Officer Welch, who had made a particular study of the "dope" situation, is a slender chap of natural pallor. He has the "dope slang" at his tongue's end and has been able to pass himself off successfully as a "hoppie."

MARKED BILLS USED.

Assuming this part Welch picked up the trail of some "dope" suspects at night in Scollay square and, as the police tell the story, became one of a dozen or so men who were escorted by trolley to the Cambridge end of the viaduct by Garzidi.

Welch had provided himself with five $1 bills, all marked "B. P. D." (Boston police department). On the ride over to Cambridge Welch thoughtfully "swapped" two of his marked bills for two in the roll of a regular "hoppie." This was done in order to spread the marked money around and get more evidence.

The police narrative describes developments thus: On the Cambridge side Garzidt and his eager followers left the car and were met by Mareto with such introductions as were necessary to the secretive occasion. Garzidt departed.

Then a slight hitch arose. It seems that Mareto, as the police tell it, was "sold out." But he had a stock upon which to draw. It was a mere matter of walking across the Somerville line to a certain place.

CAPTURES "HOPPIES."

A party of six was quickly made up to go thither. It included Mareto, the unsuspected Welch and four "legitimate hoppies," the latter including three white men and a colored one.

Mareto led them to a Somerville alley, disappeared into a house and returned quickly with morphine, as the police charge. Welch bought a 12-grain "deck" of morphine, paying $2.50 for it. The others bought.

Then Welch drew his revolver and put the entire crew under arrest, particularly Mareto. In the darkness the four regular "hoppies" managed to get away. Welch started Mareto toward Somerville police station. On the way he met Special Officer Manning and Federal Agent Scanlon.

Garzidt was found at his Cambridge home and was brought to Boston with Mareto.

PADEREWSKI—MASTER PIANIST AND NATION MAKER USES NUXATED IRON

To Obtain Renewed Energy, Power and Endurance

Dr. Kenneth K. MacAlpine, for 16 Years Adjunct Professor New York Post Graduate Medical School and Hospital, Says That In His Opinion Nuxated Iron is

The Most Valuable Tonic, Strength and Blood Builder Any Physician Can Prescribe.

Ignace Jan Paderewski the new Polish Premier who took Nuxated Iron when he was in a weak and run-down condition and needed something to build up strength and energy.

Ignace Jan Paderewski, one of the greatest musical geniuses of the age, at a time when his untiring work for Poland overtaxed his strength and impaired his health had recourse to Nuxated Iron to help rebuild his wasted forces and restore his old-time health and strength.

"With the tremendous strain imposed by over two years of almost ceaseless work in the cause of his fatherland, of which he is the foremost figure today, it is easily understood why Paderewski sought the sustaining tonic benefit of Nuxated Iron," says Dr. James Francis Sullivan, formerly physician of Bellevue Hospital (Outdoor Dept.), New York, and the Westchester County Hospital. "Lack of iron in the blood not only makes a man a physical and mental weakling, nervous, irritable, easily fatigued, but it utterly robs him of the virile force, that stamina and strength of will which are so necessary to success and power in every walk of life. Thousands of men and women are impairing their constitutions, laying themselves open to illness and literally losing their grip on health, simply because their blood is thinning out and possibly starving through lack of iron. Iron is absolutely essential to enable your blood to transform the food you eat into muscular tissue and brain. Without iron there is no strength, virality and endurance to combat obstacles or withstand severe strains. To help make strong, sturdy men of blood and iron there is nothing better than organic iron—Nuxated Iron." Mr. Paderewski says: "I am using Nuxated Iron very frequently and consider it as an excellent tonic."

A prominent New York Surgeon and Former Adjunct Professor of the New York Post Graduate Medical School and Hospital, Dr. Kenneth K. MacAlpine, says: "If people would only realise that iron is just as indispensable to the blood as is air to the lungs and be just as particular about keeping up a sufficient supply at all times, there would in my opinion be far less disease resulting from anaemic, weakened conditions.

"Nuxated Iron, by enriching the blood and creating new blood cells, strengthens the nerves, rebuilds the weakened tissues and helps to instill renewed energy into the whole system whether the patients be young or old. In my opinion Nuxated Iron is the most valuable tonic, strength and blood-builder any physician can prescribe."

If you are not strong or well you owe it to yourself to make the following test: See how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired. Next take two five-grain tablets of ordinary Nuxated Iron three times per day, after meals, for two weeks. Then test your strength again and see how much you have gained.

Manufacturers' Note. Nuxated Iron, which is recommended above, is not a secret remedy but one which is well known to druggists everywhere. Unlike the older inorganic iron products, it is easily assimilated and does not injure the teeth, make them black, nor upset the stomach. The manufacturers guarantee successful and entirely satisfactory results to every purchaser or they will refund your money. It is dispensed by all good druggists.

SEASON AT HAND; BRAVES SHIP TRUNKS TO TRAINING CAMP

By NICK FLATLEY.

THE rapid approach of the baseball season is forecast by the fact that today the Braves trunks, containing the unies, bats, balls and alibis, were shipped off to the South. Trainer Jimmy Neary leaves these parts Sunday, and the Boston contingent of athletes and scribes and visitors and business managers departs one week later. As the boys used to have it, the crash of the ash and the thud of the horsehide will soon, very soon, be heard in the land.

And the Braves set sail with enough athletes already signed to jump a pretty good team right onto the pasture. Hank and the Rabbit are still in the service, of course, but both will be out in all likelihood about the time the season opens, or thereabouts. The only hold-out thus far is J. Carlisle Smith, and it's dollars to doughnuts he will be lined up by the time his fellow athletes get down in his own dear State of Georgia.

Getting the athletes in line speaks pretty well for the way the new owner, George Washington Grant, has gone about his business, and augurs a return of success to the Brave colors. He's new to the business end of the game, but he has assimilated a lot of things very rapidly. Just now those Braves could line up thusly: Holke 1b, Herzog or Rawlings 2b, Schreiber or Rawlings ss, Blackburne 3b, Kelly lf, Powell cf, Riggert or King rf, Henry, catcher; Rudolph, Demaree, Keating, Canavan, George, Scott or McQuillan, pitcher

And that, it might be mentioned, is a more imposing outfit than the club boasted at the tag end of the dolorous 1918 season.

Good Scraps in View at Commercial Show

THREE of the best—in advance ten-rounders that have appeared on one boxing card for quite some time make up the program for the Commercial's fans this p. m. The club, now famous for flocks of action, should surely run according to custom. Teddy Murphy, pepperly West End veteran tackles Tommy Marks the youngster who has been coming along very nicely.

Tommy Flanagan, the New Bedford youth who has made several journeys higher and polished off some of our favorites, reappears to battle with Al Wiltse, a Springfield star. Johnny Donovan, South Boston hero, meets a tough bird in Charley Bergin, the boxer who took J. Downes along for twelve fast sessions a week back.

In addition there will be an inductory six-rounder between the hard-hitting Paddy Flynn and Frank Reppetto.

Crowd Off for Boyle-Carlson Go

THERE will also be much quarreling tonight down Brockton way, where Phinney Boyle and Harry Carlson swing the mittens. A crowd of local fans will make the excursion to watch the scrap, as Phinney has collected not a few supporters since he showed he was really back by beating Charley Parker.

Boyle, by the way, has been matched to meet Billy De Foe at Lawrence, March 13, and Tommy Dixon at Manchester two weeks later. Two members of the Williams stable have also been entered in the featherweight tourney to find an opponent for Champion Herman, towit, Barney Snyder and Paddy Owens. This will be staged at Trenton in a couple of weeks.

Work comes from Chick Hayes, who is in Manchester training for his scrap with Al Shubert next Tuesday night, that the game up that way is going great guns, and that the advance sale is the biggest of the season.

Last Night in the Ring

Lowell—Walter Mohr, Brooklyn welterweight, and Young Gouls of Woonsocket, R. I., boxed tame draw twelve rounds.

Portsmouth, N. H.—Paddy Owens, Cambridge Mass., featherweight, defeated Johnny Russell of New York, twelve rounds.

Lawrence—Red Allen of Bridgeport, Ct., substituting for Louis [illegible] knocked out Bud Murphy of [illegible]

RINGSIDE'S SELECTIONS

Paddy Flynn to beat Frank Rapetto.

Tommy Marks to beat Teddy Murphy.

Tommy Flanagan to beat Al Wiltse.

Johnny Donovan to beat Charley Bergin.

HOUCK AND VETO BOX TO DRAW IN LYNN RING

Willie Houck, Philadelphia welterweight, a newcomer in these parts, gave a good account of himself in his ten-round bout with Johnny Veto of Chelsea, at the Casino A. A., Lynn, and gained a draw from Referee Dick Fleming. Houck made a flashy start, but Veto got to him in the final stanzas.

Johnny Marto knocked out Bunch O'Neil in four rounds.

YOKEL WINS ODD FALL FROM PINKEY GARDNER

Mike Yokel, king of the middleweight wrestlers, tossed Pinkey Gardner the odd in a busy battle at the Grand Opera House. Gardner made a bold start and gained the first flop, time 1 14 30. The next tiff went 58 20, with Yokel gaining it on a hammerlock. The Westerner repeated on a like hold in 16 00.

Charley Metro went thirty minutes to a draw with John Kilonis.

PUTTING THE NEXT ONE OVER WITH "BUGS" BAER.

THE President is again at sea, but he hasn't got a thing on the rest of us. This is the year for seventeen locusts and income blanks. If the locusts would only chew up the income blanks everything would be as merry as alimony bells.

An income blank is a peninsula of paper that connects the government with your bankroll.

You may dig little exemption canals in the peninsula, but just when you have your assessments pared down to sea level, the government slips in a kick that brings on a landslide of taxes and clogs up the works.

Most of this year's blanks will be filled out with balehooks and electric riveters. The stevedores and boatbuilders copped most of the financial velvet that the army contractors didn't nip. An army contractor is a cuckoo who sews buttons on a charlotte russe cover and calls it a shoe.

WHEN the revenue birds garnishee your kale with an income subpoena, don't try to do a Houdini out of the net. The birds who tried that last year are now sophomores in the Atlanta jailhouse.

The taxhounds are sure bruising bankrolls this season. Millionaires are errand boys this year. They grab your coin and run right to Uncle Sam with it. Nothing is exempt from the income "flu." Government grabs everything. It's a good thing that the sox on the statue of Christopher Columbus are welded on.

An instruction sheet goes along with each blank that is just as instructive as a Sanskrit peanut advertisement. Last year the income man only took one bite out of your bankroll. This year he stutters.

As a rule, the blanks are fair, but some of the assessments are a rank injustice. F'r instance, a wife is allowed no exemption for a husband.

IF a chorus girl sues ten birds simultaneously for breach of promise and collects a yard of plunder, the government grabs the loot.

A BANKER with busted arches has no edge on a healthy broker. They're both grab number 258 in the tax draft.

IF a sapp takes the time and trouble to get smeared by a trolley car and tear off about ten thousand smackers, along comes the revenue boys and clip him down to the cuticle or true skin. Going to ruin the industry. Why discourage talent?

GOVERNMENT even plasters a fine on alimony. Going to take all the romance out of marriage.

IF you're married and do not live with your mother-in-law, you have to pay 12 per cent. for the privilege. You're allowed two thousand exemption for a wife, blonde or brunette. Red heads, five thousand. This is the only spot where the government sympathizes with you.

IF you own a bungalow in the United States, Philippines or Porto Rico, the Treasury adopts the usual percentage of your income. If you own one on Long Island, you've got to give up six skeeters out of every hundred.

McINNIS CHATS WITH BARROW; DOESN'T SIGN

By H. W. LANIGAN

Manager Ed Barrow of the Red Sox has now learned from Stuffy McInnis, club's crack all-round first-sacker and one of balldom's brightest lights, precisely what he learned from Babe Ruth when he held his confab with the Colossus early in the week, i. e., that Gloucester Jack, too, is a hold-out.

In Ruth's case, Barrow admits Battering Babe wants a doggone lot more than the club has offered him. The figures are $5 000 bid, $15,000 asked. As regards McInnis, whom Barrow chatted with yesterday, Scott, Mays, Shean and the rest, Big Ed is confident the club will be able to line them up without much trouble.

McInnis is keeping his own counsel. His bosom pals claim Stuffy is not only not satisfied with his offer for '19, but claim he has a bonus of $500 coming for operating on third in the pinch last Spring.

President Grant of the Braves is banking on having all his athletes lined up by the time the start for the training camp at Columbus, Ga. is made a week from Sunday. The signing of Al Demaree, Ray Keating, Hugh McQuillan and Jack Scott, all boxmen, by the way, makes eighteen members of the Tribe who have turned in their signed contracts.

Red Smith is the club's only hold-out, so far as known. He's been offered the same salary he drew last year, but wants a raise, which Grant claims he will not grant.

The new magnate is confident he has toted fair with Smith and has informed J. Carlisle that if he doesn't want to accept his old price, the team will worry along without him and Lena Blackburne will be assigned to work at the far corner.

Konetchy is another old one outside the fold. The Big Train was drawing $6,600 per when he first entered the Wigwam. He took a cut to $4,400 a year ago, and has been asked to accept a further reduction, it is understood.

Konetchy, if he comes to terms with the Braves, may get a chance to turn outfielder down at the training camp. Stallings wants Holke, a much younger man, for work at first, and there's no reason why the ex-Giant should not stick at the bag.

Year in and year out, Koney has been a mighty dependable batter and steady workman on the defence. So, with Holke on the job at first, he may bust into the outfield, providing he sticks with the club, and Stallings' array of outer gardeners don't come through as he hopes.

If Jess Wiggles Out, Carpentier Is to Battle Dempsey

Chicago, March 7.—Jack Kearns, Jack Dempsey's manager, writes a Chicago friend stating that in the event Jess Willard is not in condition to go through with his programmed fight with his charge July 4, he will pit Georges Carpentier, heavyweight champion of France, against the Western marvel.

Kearns adds that if the year's big battle should be Dempsey and Carpentier, instead of Dempsey and Willard, it will probably be staged Labor Day.

"Carpentier will be brought over here despite all stories to the contrary," Kearns stated in his letter.

THIS is the anniversary of the storming of Jaffa by Napoleon in 1799, in which hundreds of Turks were massacred. Napoleon thereafter laid siege to Acre, defended by the English, but was unable to take it. He returned to Alexandria and, abandoning for the time being his dream of Oriental conquest, escaped to France to resume sway

When a Girl Marries

A NEW SERIAL OF YOUNG MARRIED LIFE

Ann Lisle Writes Interestingly of the Trials and Slight Jealousies of a Bride

By Ann Lisle

CHAPTER LXXXV.

Copyright, 1919, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

"AND now, young lady, I have a surprise for you," said [illegible] up the avenue [illegible] Virginia's house [illegible] studio. We're on our way to meet Terry at the Rochambeau; then [illegible] Jimmie [illegible]"

[illegible] surprise [illegible] happy little [illegible] for Jimmie and [illegible] Anthony Norreys off.

"Funny about Tony; no one ever says 'Mr.' Norreys—it's too formal [illegible] him, [illegible] 'You [illegible] Anne? That I regard as a triumph—for look how many [illegible] it's taken me to win you!'

"I've been a proud [illegible], sensitive [illegible] Betty [illegible] contrite [illegible] and maybe I'll have a relapse some time and throw your generous [illegible] back in your face [illegible] What [illegible]

"Sparky [illegible] Betty promptly. I decline to be shoved out of your front yard again by any wabbly 'No Trespassing' signs. You may think [illegible] but I was as pleased as a [illegible] to be permitted to help you select a couple of candlesticks today. I wish you'd promise me, child, that if ever you do really need a friend you'll turn to Betty B."

"I will turn to Betty B.," I repeated in a voice that was a little crumbly around the edges. "And, though I don't deserve it at all, I know I'll find her there if I call."

I wonder if I will ever need to redeem that pledge?

Terry Is Waiting

Terry was [illegible] at the Rochambeau when we arrived. Betty greeted [illegible] gaily—almost indifferently [illegible] there was something strange [illegible] the way he stooped [illegible] Betty as if she were a tiny bit of fragile china, instead of a [illegible] green-eyed [illegible] with the beauty and [illegible]

We [illegible] in the car and drove [illegible] where Anthony Norreys has his home and his offices. But [illegible] the drive bits of conversation I'd once had with Jim came back to me.

"He [illegible] ghost-ridden. . . . Both of them are. . . . For a man who probably doesn't deserve it. . . . Poor Atherton!"

"Poor Terry!" I found myself thinking. I suppose I was "romancing" again as Jim calls it, but just as I got to that point, we drove by the great weeping willows which Betty told me marked the entrance to—the Norreys place—and a second later we had pulled up at a red brick lodge with white stone steps and window frames.

"This cosey little spot is where your Jimmie works," announced Terry. Then we stepped over the threshold and were at once in a great [illegible] room. At a [illegible] sat [illegible] as a mass of papers and head resting on his arms—a picture of weariness and [illegible]

[illegible] was [illegible] I knew that Jim was [illegible] having an [illegible]—to hide his lack of interest in the work from Terry, probably. At this moment in came Anthony Norreys, his thin face radiant, his eyes alight.

"[illegible] for joy surprises," he said in a voice that carried conviction. "I had a rendezvous with my cook directly you phoned, and Nora McGinnis surprised me, too. Didn't she just beam with delight and tell me that [illegible] folks to [illegible] when I [illegible] suggested I'd like to give a party tonight!"

"[illegible] dear old scamp, are [illegible] asking us to stay and dine?" asked Betty gayly. "Because if you are, I, as guide and mentor for the day to Anne Harrison, do hereby unanimously accept."

Appreciation from Jim

"[illegible] it's jolly white of you, Norreys," Jim broke in. "I'm such an old derelict that I don't believe I could make town tonight without the reviving effect of some food."

"Tired?" asked Anthony Norreys gently. "I know, lad, how tired a man who's been through that holocaust over there is when he's first learning to use—what's left of him. Just remember what Dawson said—[illegible] tremendously when you're down. Every man I have met out here has the amazing courage to wear his crown of thorns as if it were a cap-and-bells."

Then my Jim—my petulant Jim, who never would let me offer him a bit of sympathy—laid his hand on the maimed arm that hung at Anthony Norreys' side.

"You understand—you've been through it, too," he muttered in a clogged voice—"and come out—[illegible] me."

"Cut it—Jim!" cried Terry with the first impatience I'd ever seen him show.

But Anthony Norreys stood by Jim.

"Why, lad, don't be bitter. You've been in the biggest show on earth and you've only had to pay for your ticket with a smashed ankle-bone. You aren't maimed."

As Anthony Norreys said that I turned my eyes away—for suddenly they were wet.

Operations Suspended

At the time of the West Australian boom the chairman of a gold mining company dilated eloquently to a meeting of shareholders upon [illegible] magnificent specimens of ore which were displayed on the table. At the close of the meeting he said impressively: "Ladies and gentlemen, I have cabled out to ask when we shall begin crushing, but I have not yet received a reply." The meeting broke up in a most cheerful and sanguine frame of mind. Later the reply cable came. It was to the following effect: "Cannot begin crushing till you send back the reef!"

The Love Dance

In tropical South America and on some of the islands of the Pacific is found the beautiful bird known as the jacana. It is famous for its so-called love dance, which is executed by the males to excite the admiration of the female birds. When the mating season approaches the jacana will single out its favorite lady and try to win her admiration with all its bewitching manoeuvres. In the dance the wings are spread and worked in such a manner that the beautiful-colored feathers produce a brilliant effect.

Eat a Good Breakfast

By Loretto C. Lynch

SHE stood on the station with the rest of the commuters and shivered and shook.

"How I do hate the Winter time!" she said, with a scowl, to a fat and rosy girl who stood near her. "I begin to shiver just as soon as Winter comes on, and I never do get warm again till the next Spring."

One might hear a similar conversation anywhere during these [illegible] mornings. Women and girls [illegible] miss the joys, the sports [illegible] the real delights of Winter because they are cold and uncomfortable [illegible] the time. And yet, the [illegible] within their own reach.

A blue, pinched, hungry-looking girl wearing a most expensive fur coat shiveringly told me that her fur coat, [illegible] as it was did not keep her warm.

"Perhaps you don't eat a good breakfast before you start out these cold mornings," I suggested.

"I most certainly do," she assured me. "We have the best coffee obtainable on our table and the toast is carefully made. And I have the juice of a couple of oranges almost every morning."

And this young lady wondered why she shivered! Had she not eaten that same kind of breakfast during the torrid days of Summer? The weather had changed considerably since Summer but she had not the good sense to change her diet.

A few days ago I sat in a little restaurant in a great office building. It was only half after 8 o'clock. And within the next half hour I counted twenty-five different men who came supposedly from their home breakfast tables, and had to have one or two "balls" to heat them up before they went to their offices. They substituted a stimulant for the food that should have warmed them.

Everyone who caters breakfast knows that it is one of the hardest meals to plan. In the morning the appetite is finicky and it requires coaxing to start the digestive juices flowing. The very appearance of the breakfast table has much to do with creating an appetite. If the table is pulled into the sunniest corner of the room and carefully set, it has a psychological effect. A snowy linen table cloth, sparkling glass and bright silver certainly tempt even the gentleman who "has been sitting up with a sick friend all night."

Every breakfast should start with some kind of fruit. As the various fruits furnish the different mineral salts required by the body, the fruit served should vary. A steaming bowl of well-cooked cereal, with some top milk and perhaps a little sugar, will "coal up" the human furnace for several hours.

Oatmeal and cornmeal contain more oil than most other cereals and are therefore especially good Winter foods. It is cheaper to purchase oatmeal raw and cook it for several hours at home.

If you have a fire kept up for other purposes you will find it cheaper to buy the raw oatmeal. Then, of course, there is the fireless cooker. But if you do buy the steam-cooked cereal, cook it at least twice as long as directed on the packages. Only by long, thorough cooking is cereal made fit for human consumption. Our British friends tell us we eat our cereals over-cooked. But, if over-cooked American cereals can make doughboys like ours, I think we better keep right on eating long-cooked cereals, don't you?

Approved Recipes

CRANBERRY JELLY.

Cranberries, 1 quart (measured 5 cups); water, 1 cup, sugar, 1 cup; light corn syrup, 1 cup.

Wash the berries, add the water and cook until soft. Rub through a strainer. Add sugar and syrup and boil gently about ten minutes, until the mixture is thick and jelly-like. If the skins are objectionable, the berries may be well mashed and put through a strainer.

MINCE MEAT.

Apples, 1 peck; chopped raisins, 2 pounds; suet, chopped finely, 1 pound; vinegar, 1 cup; cinnamon, 2 teaspoons; nutmeg, 2 teaspoons; cloves, 3 teaspoons, brown sugar, ½ cup; corn syrup, 3 cups, citron, chopped finely, ¼ pound salt, 2 tablespoons.

Chop finely, add spices and liquids and cook until thickened. Seal while hot. Add 1 cup of cider for each pie when mince meat is reheated.

PUMPKIN PIE FILLING

Pumpkin (steamed and strained), 1 cup, milk, ½ cup; brown sugar, 2 tablespoons, salt, ¼ teaspoon; butter substitute, melted, 2 tablespoons, corn syrup, dark, 1-3 cup; ginger, 1 tespoon, cinnamon, 1 teaspoon flour, 1 tablespoon; 1 egg or 3 tablespoons flour.

Mix dry ingredients. Add pumpkin, milk, syrup, butter substitute and the slightly beaten egg; mix thoroughly. Fill the pastry shell and bake slowly about ¾ hour.

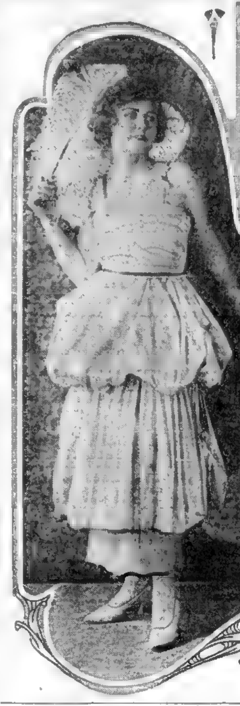
BUCKWHEAT AND RYE PAN-BUCKWHEAT WAFFLES

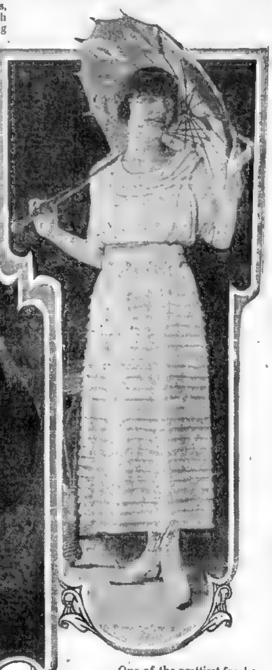
1¾ cups buckwheat, 3 teaspoons baking powder, ¾ teaspoons salt, 1½ cups milk, 2 eggs, yolks and whites beaten separately, 1 tablespoon melted fat.

Mix and sift the dry ingredients. Add the milk, the egg yolks and the melted fat. Fold in the beaten whites last, and cook the mixture on a hot waffle iron.

Evening Gown and Spring Frock

A beautiful plaid taffeta evening dress, lined with pink chiffon and edged with orange. It makes an effective gown, uniting style and simplicity to a noticeable degree.





One of the prettiest frocks shown in the Spring styles is this "petal frock," of lavender and pale blue georgette.

When Authors Tripped

INSTANCES IN FAMOUS BOOKS

MISS MARIE CORELLI, in "The Treasure of Heaven," makes one of her characters say, "After school hours I got an evening job of a shilling a week for bringing home eight Highland bull-heifers from pasture"!

A common blunder in poetry is to make the female bird sing. Shakespeare, referring to a nightingale, says, "Nightly she sings on yond pomegranate-tree" and "The nightingale, if she shall sing by day . . ." Milton also trips in this respect:

"Wakeful nightingale,
She all night long her amorous descant sung."

Scott and Burns, both keen nature lovers, were always correct in this detail.

Sir Walter Scott once confessed to having a bad memory, but in dealing with the wealth of historical incidents in his books he is remarkably accurate. On occasion, however, he is at fault. In "Ivanhoe" Wamba says, "I am a brother of St. Francis." The order of St. Francis was founded in 1206, but Wamba lived in the time of Richard the First, 1189-1199. In the "Heart of Midlothian" Scott errs in some of his references to Bedreddin Hassan, of "The Arabian Night." As Thackeray copied the same mistakes into "Vanity Fair" he is also at fault. One of Scott's most picturesque incidents is that in "Waverley," when Prince Charles Edward leads Flora McIvor out to the dance. Whether Scott erred knowingly cannot be said, but a good authority recently told us that "there is nothing so authentic as our knowledge of the fact that Prince Charles never danced at all."

Pope was wont to boast of his accuracy, but he blunders in translating the "Iliad," where he transforms Homer's "horned stag" into a "branching hind." Hinds do not possess horns.

Campbell writes of aloes and palm-trees in Wyoming, but neither of these trees grows there.

In "Paradise Lost" Milton says: "Thick as autumnal leaves that strow the brooks in Vallombrosa." The trees of Vallombrosa, being pines, do not strow the brooks in Autumn with their leaves.

A certain English novelist puts Bombay in Bengal. Not until the edition was printed was the mistake discovered, and, rather than sacrifice the edition, the author, evidently of a humorous turn of mind, had a slip of paper printed and inserted in each copy of the edition with the words—"It must be understood that for the purposes of this story, and this story only, Bombay is in Bengal."

DRINK HOT WATER BEFORE BREAKFAST

Says you really feel clean, sweet and fresh inside, and are seldom ill.

If you are accustomed to wake up with a coated tongue, foul breath or a dull, dizzy headache; or, if your meals sour and turn into gas and acids, you have a real surprise awaiting you.

Tomorrow morning, immediately upon arising, drink a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it. This is intended to first neutralize and then wash out of your stomach, liver, kidneys and thirty feet of intestines all the indigestible waste, poisons, sour bile and toxins, thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary canal.

Those subject to sick headaches, backache, bilious attacks, constipation or any form of stomach trouble, are urged to get a quarter pound of limestone phosphate from the drug store and begin enjoying this morning inside-bath. It is said that men and women who try this become enthusiastic and keep it up daily.

Just as hot water and soap cleanse, purify and freshen the skin, so hot water and a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate act on the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels. Limestone phosphate is an inexpensive white powder and almost tasteless.—Advertisement.

Triumph of Aeroplane

ATTAINED HEIGHT OF 30,500 FEET

Wonderful Sky Journey of Captain Long and Lieutenant Blowers of the British Army

By Garrett P. Serviss

THE feat of Captain Lang and Lieutenant Blowers of the British army in attaining a height of 30,500 feet in a two-seated biplane on January 2 (the highest preceding record being that of Captain R. W. Schroeder of the American army, who attained 28,900 feet on September 18 last), definitely puts the loftiest points on the earth well below the level to which man has demonstrated that he can ascend, lifted by the twin wings of his genius and his daring.

It is interesting to compare the height reached by these bold adventurers with the elevation of the culminating mountain peaks of our globe, remembering that 30,500 feet is nearly five and four-fifths miles. Away off in the tangle of mighty peaks constituting the Nepaulese Himalayas, north of the plains of India, only to be seen from certain lofty points of vantage and never yet touched by the foot of man, rises the throne-mountain of the earth, Mt. Everest.

Separate Mountain

Until within a few years it was supposed that Everest was identical with a peak bearing the native name of Gaurisankar, but it has now been proved that the latter is a separate and lower mountain, and that Everest never had a name, evidently because it was so difficult to be seen and identified, until the name of the engineer who first determined its position and its altitude, in 1841, was bestowed upon it.

Naturally this peerless mountain, rising miles above the snow line, is clothed perpetually in gleaming white, as are all its attendant peaks. It is the heart of "the Abode of Snow." The height of Everest determined by trigonometrical observations is 29,002 feet, which is 1,500 feet lower than the level attained by Captain Lang's biplane. There are many peaks in the Himalayas rising to elevations between 25,000 and 28,000 feet, but the heads of all of them would lie from a half mile to a mile below the loftiest flight of the mechanical bird that man has constructed to bear him up into cloudland. There remains, then, no place on earth that human eyes cannot look down upon.

In the broadest part of the great vertebral range of the Andes in South America, in the republic of Ecuador, towers a huge mountain, once imagined to be the loftiest on earth—Chimborazo. We now know that the height of Chimborazo is really about 20,500 feet, or 10,000 feet below the loftiest flight of the airplane. Farther south, between Chili and Argentina, rises the crowning peak of the Andes, Aconcagua, 23,393 feet high. Captain Lang could have seen its snowy cap almost a mile and a half below him.

The mountain throne of Europe is Mt. Blanc, in the Alps. Its height is 15,782 feet, which is enough to make its top a dome of perpetual snow, yet it is but a trifle more than half the height to which the propellers drove the British biplane. To distinguish mountain climbers on the white head of Mt. Blanc as they passed almost three miles above it aeronauts would have to employ telescopes.

If that same aeroplane, keeping at its greatest elevation, could follow the crest of the Rocky Mountains from end to end it would never be less than three miles clear above their most aspiring summits. The mighty range would appear abased and flattened out, looking not unlike a stretch of cross-rutted road frozen hard after a season of muddy going, and sprinkled over with a flurry of snow.

Pressure Light

An account of the flight of Captain Lang and Lieutenant Blowers says that the pressure of the air was so slight at the culmination of their rise that it could not drive the small propellers connected with the petrol and oil pump. At a height of about three and a half miles the pressure of the air is theoretically assumed to be half that at sea level. At five and four-fifths miles it may not be more than one-third that at sea level.

The relative lack of oxygen from which they suffered, is due to the greater weight of that element compared with nitrogen [illegible] lighter gases becoming relatively more abundant with increase of height above sea level.

COPPER TRADE PROSPECTS IMPROVE

There is better sentiment in the copper metal market. It is said that one consumer is in the market for 10,000,000 pounds, the largest inquiry since the government ceased buying. After the dividend meetings of the four porphyry companies, Charles Hayden said:

"A really substantial buying of copper appears to be developing around current prices."

If the business of consumers improves they will have to enter the market for large quantities. Governments appear to be the only buyers who are overstocked with metal. During the war other users were debarred by the high price from ordering more than imperative needs required.

The latest sales by small interests are said to have been at 14¾ to 14⅞ cents a pound, an advance from 14½. Producers are leading sellers and asking 15.

It is reported from New York that producers have ratified the tentative agreement with government agents to market through regular channels within fifteen months approximately 140,000,000 pounds held by the war or other departments, and that all now required to complete the deal is ratification by Washington authorities.

Zinc Production Reduced

Curtailment of zinc production in this country is indicated by the latest Butte & Superior Co.'s report. In February this year its production of zinc in concentrates amounted to 4,175,000 pounds, compared with 12,600,000 for the same month last year. Its January, 1919, output was 14,300,000 pounds, compared with 14,300,000 for January, 1918.

GOVERNMENT TO MARKET ITS STOCK OF SPELTER

Members of the American Zinc Institute have been conferring in New York with Federal agents as how to best liquidate the stock of spelter held by the government. Like copper it will be marketed, it is planned, through regular trade channels.

A survey of government holdings is being made and later this month, when the amount has been learned, the conference will be resumed. It is desired to dispose of the stock in a manner which will net the government the largest price and disturb the market as little as possible.

MARKET ACTIVE AND TRADING BROAD

By W. H. ROSS,
Financial Editor.

Stocks were strong in New York in the afternoon, the highest price level being reached after midday. After a strong opening the upward trend continued all the morning. During noontime there was a slight recessional, but it was brief and followed by a sharp rally. Steels led the upturn. U. S. Steel sold at its highest for several weeks. Trading was active, and the market broad. Coppers were a strong class, with Inspiration advancing the most. Shipping issues held gains. Rails were not conspicuous for activity, but were a firm group. Rubbers were at their best prices during the first hour. Oils were strong from the outset. Rumely and International Harvester reflected encouraging crop reports.

GAINS IN THE AFTERNOON.

By two o'clock gains included U. S. steel 1¼ at 95½, its highest having been 95⅞; Crucible 1½ at 63½; Bethlehem B 1 at 67¾; Baldwin 3⅛ at 82¾; Reading 1½ at 83¾; Southern Pacific 1⅜ at 102 ; Union Pacific, ex-dividend, 1½ at 130¼; New Haven 3 at 31¼.

Hide and Leather preferred, 1⅝ at 1.00¾; Atlantic Gulf, 2¾ at 1.06; Marine preferred, 1⅛ at 1.04Z; Mexican Petroleum, 2 at 1.84⅞; Industrial Alcohol, 3⅛ at 1.19*; Tobacco Products, 1 at 88; Sumatra, 1Z at 1.14⅝; Anaconda, ½ at 61; Inspiration, 1½ at 46¾; Utah Copper, 1⅛ at 70Z, and Pan American, 1¼ at 83, after selling at the highest record price of 83Z.

Among declines were Kelly Springfield, 2¼ at 120½, and Goodrich, ¼ at 69½.

BOSTON MARKET STRONG.

The Boston market was strong, with Swift and American Woolen preferred selling at their highest for the year. Massachusetts Electric preferred sold at its lowest. Among the most active issues on the local exchange were the last-named stock, American Telephone, Swift and New Haven.

Afternoon gains included Telephone, ¾ at 105¾; Swift, 1 at 129; United Fruit, 1½ at 166; Boston and Maine, 2½ at 32; and New Haven, 2¼ at 30¾. Massachusetts Electric preferred was off 2⅛ at 11¾, after selling down to 10½.

SELL AT YEAR'S HIGHEST.

A number of specialties continued to be trading features. United Cigar Stores sold at a record high price on the first transaction, and Pan-American at a record high in the afternoon. Issues to sell at their 1919 highest to date included Crucible, Central Leather, Bethlehem B, Steel Foundries, General Motors, Industrial Alcohol and Baldwin. Kelly-Springfield opened weak and at one time during the morning was nearly five points below Thursday's final figure. It receded after the announcement of the management's plan for the distribution each quarter of a 3 per cent. stock dividend in addition to $1 a share in cash, if stockholders at a special meeting authorize an increase in common stock from $5,020,000 to $10,000,000.

MARKET STRONG AT OPENING.

The market was strong at the start, and it had breadth. Gains marked the movement of almost every important speculative issue, although Kelly-Springfield was an exception. Initial advances ranged from fractions to nearly two points. Trading was active and sentiment more confident than before during the week. Judge Gary's speech to steel manufacturers was optimistic concerning their industry and the business outlook as a whole. He said: "After peace is declared and made secure, and with reasonable co-operation between government and business interests, we should realize the greatest prosperity in our experience." The price improvement extended to railroad shares as well as to industrials, and coppers had a better tone. Utah was one of the strongest stocks in the list. In the mining trade belief is spreading that the price of copper is near bottom, and hope grows that demand will increase faster than has been expected.

There was a brisk demand for stocks at the outset. Much of the buying, contrary to expectation, was from the "outside." Covering of shorts was continued. Bears were disconcerted by the upturn which began yesterday. There were a number of favorable influences at work. One was a report that banking interests would care for immediate railroad needs. Another was talk that an extra session of Congress would be called. It is common opinion that a conference between producers and the Redfield board will result in reduction of steel prices. A decline in charges for other basic commodities is looked for also. Business of the country is in better condition than most people realize, although hampered by restrictions and uncertainties that cannot endure. When they pass, great expansion is inevitable, it would seem.

Old style contracts were from 40 points higher to 20 points lower, and new style contracts from 30 points lower to 28 points higher. At the end of the first 20 minutes the market was feverish, with old style contracts about five points net lower and new styles 8 to 10 points down.

Opening prices were: March (old) 22.50, May (old) 21.50, (new) 21.75, July (old) 20.60, (new) 21.00, October (old) 19.30, (new) 19.60, December (new) 19.15.

Chicago Grain Market

Chicago, March 7.—Corn opened ¼ to 1¼c higher. Oats were ⅜ to ½c higher. Provisions opened higher. Opening prices were: Corn, March 1.36¼, May 1.29¾ to 1.30¼, July 1.25¼ to 1.25⅞. Oats, May 61 to 61¼, July 60¼ to ⅜. Lard, May 25.30, July 24.55. Ribs, May 23.00, July 21.50.

New York Sub-Treasury Loss

New York March 7.—The sub-treasury lost $461,000 to the banks on Thursday, reducing the cash net gain since Friday to $1,514,000.

The Waltham Trust Company has increased its quarterly dividend from 1¾ to 2 per cent., the current declaration being payable April 1 to holders of record March 22.

Allis-Chalmers Manufacturing Co. declared regular quarterly dividend of 1¾ per cent. on preferred and ¾ of 1 per cent. on account of accumulated dividends, payable April 15 to stock of record March 31.

STEEL MAKERS VOTE TO AID GOVERNMENT

After more than 150 steel and iron manufacturers had discussed the proposal by Secretary Redfield for action to stabilise steel prices and broaden the steel market, Judge E. H. Gary, as chairman, announced that a committee had been named to confer with the Industries Board of the Department of Commerce. Representatives of the iron and steel industry who attended the American Iron and Steel Institute meeting voted unanimously to accept the co-operation invitation of the government board.

The whole matter, with power, was referred to a committee comprising Judge Gary, J. A. Farrell, Charles M. Schwab, J. A. Topping, A. C. Dinkey, L. E. Block, J. A. Burden, E. C. Grace, C. H. McCullough, Jr., H. G. Dalton, A. F. Houston, J. A. Campbell and W. L. King.

While reduction of steel prices is expected generally, it is said that manufacturers do not see how it can be accomplished without revision of war wages. No wage reduction is wanted by Washington authorities, although it is urged that steel product prices should be cut to a point warranting buying by the government. Most of such buying would be for railroads, and manufacturers are at present in doubt as to how money is to be raised to pay for such purchasing since Congress failed to approve of the $750,000,000 appropriation for rail expenses under continued Federal control.

The whole question will be gone over when the steel committee confers with the Industries Board.

Regarding the trade view of the price situation, the "Iron Age" says: "Stabilized prices are regarded as the need. There have been three months of them, and the producers count on being able to maintain them without government intervention. The plane might be lowered, but the suggestion is that the same strong hands who produce the most of the steel of the country might definitely state the period in which no change would be made, as, for instance, up to July 1. Then buying, which could hardly have been expected at any price in the period of recovery from war shock and of readjustment, would materialize. Any cut, even a sharp one, which leaves also the impression of further recessions at early rather than future dates, would not be conducive to developing business."

Stops Medicine—
Health Recovered by Internal Baths

Mr. A. Czarnecki, 857 Montgomery St., San Francisco, Cal., writes Tyrrell's Hygienic Institute of New York as follows:

"I must admit that the use of the 'J. B. L. Cascade' has relieved my chronic constipation from which I suffered. Since May 12, 1913, I have never even tasted any kind of patent medicine or purgative. My health is excellent in every respect."

Over half a million bright, keen, intelligent Americans have found that Internal Bathing is more essential to their health than external baths—

Have found that used occasionally at night they feel like different people the next morning. No more of that bilious, tired, nervous feeling, but having by Nature's own cleanser—antiseptic warm water—removed all the poisonous waste from the lower intestine, they awake thoroughly refreshed by normal sleep, with all their functions acting properly, clear-headed, happy and confident, eager and capable for the duties of the day.

Why not learn more about this rapidly growing and natural practice? The "J. B. L. Cascade" is the invention of Chas. A. Tyrrell, M. D., of New York, a specialist on internal baths for 26 years, and is now being shown and explained by all Liggett-Riker-Jaynes' stores in New England, who will give you—free on request—an interesting booklet on the subject, called "Why Man of Today Is Only 50% Efficient."

BELIEVE FOOD WILL STOP RED PERIL

By ROBERT J. PREW,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Paris, March 7.—The American peace delegates now in Paris, with the exception of Colonel E. M. House, held a conference in Secretary Lansing's office in the Hotel Crillon this morning to formulate plans to end the food crisis in central and southern Europe. It was understood that the Americans entered the meeting of the council of ten this afternoon with definite proposals to clear up the food situation.

Provisioning of the central empires to prevent "hunger unrest" and the spread of Bolshevism is the aim of the council.

It was generally agreed among the delegates of the Big Five that the countries making up the old German alliance should be fed before the danger mark is reached. However, nothing has been done on an adequate scale so far, although a large amount of foodstuffs has already been sent into Austria.

There is a strong sentiment among the peace commissioners that any further delay in sending food into Germany might prove perilous. It is felt that action should be taken to get supplies to the hunger-stricken millions during March and April to tide them over until the next harvest.

The danger of the sweep of Bolshevism through the central powers unless relief is quickly sent is fully realized. The Bolshevik leaders would lose no time in taking advantage of the people's unrest over lack of foodstuffs to spread their propaganda.

The difficulty of getting supplies into Austria is one of transportation wholly. Only 800 tons of food are being sent into Austria, Czecho-Slovakia and Bohemia daily, which is only 25 per cent. of the amount needed.

There is a large amount of food stored at Fiume, but the railroads leading northward from the city cannot be used owing to the dispute between the Italians and the Serbians and the Italian blockade of the Dalmatian coast.

This problem, it is believed, may prove a faction in compelling Italy to change her attitude on the question of the Adriatic littoral.

(Italy has made claim to all the territory bordering the northern end of the Adriatic on the claim that the poulation is Italian. The Serbians and Jugo-Slavs, on the other hand, demand certain ports on the ground they are necessary to the commercial development of Greater Serbia. It is understood that the American delegation has not looked with favor on Italy's claims.)

Great Northern Earnings

For January this year the Great Northern Railway's gross of $3,087,000 was 50 per cent. better than its showing for the corresponding 1918 month, while a net operating income of $924,958, compared with a deficit of $200,661 for January, 1918.

Maine Has Chance to Help All New England

If the Water Power Controversy Cannot Be Settled to the Benefit of All, Let It Be Put Under Public Ownership.

A controversy is fast coming to a head in the State of Maine over an issue that vitally affects the industrial future of Massachusetts, and of Rhode Island and Connecticut also.

Electrical engineers tell us that the undeveloped water powers of the Northern New England States are capable of supplying electric power and electric light and heat more than sufficient to operate our transportation systems, light all our dwellings, and turn all the factory wheels now driven by steam in the whole of New England, and all that are likely to be in existence here for a generation to come.

In the present state of the art the electricity can be generated and distributed, they say—providing only that the development of the water power is carried out on a large enough scale—so cheaply as to put an end to the use of coal for fuel except for domestic heating, with a possibility that further improvements may place even heating within the reach of the wealthier classes of home owners.

The water is there, though now running to waste, and nature has prepared the way for storing the spring freshets at comparatively small cost in deep valleys where the land to be submerged is cheap, and where narrow gorges invite the construction of dams without the prohibitive expense which would obtain in more level regions like Massachusetts.

The hydro-electric combine, it appears, has been fully alive to this situation for some time, and has perfected plans which, if carried out in Maine and New Hampshire, would at the start enable them to market in Massachusetts, Rhode Island and Connecticut some three millions or more of cheap electric horse-power. But the Maine legislature has imposed a veto on the project so far as that State is concerned by decreeing that no electricity produced from water power within the State shall be sold across its borders. By this restrictive legislation they hope to secure for Maine industries an advantage in cheap power that will greatly stimulate her manufactures, much as the industries of Pennsylvania might theoretically be developed, at the expense of the prosperity of sister States, if the Quaker State should keep all the coal in her mines for home consumption.

The water-power companies threaten to contest the constitutionality of such legislation as an infringement upon the control of Congress over interstate commerce, but the United States Supreme Court has in repeated decisions set up a theory of State sovereignty over natural resources which it seems unlikely to reverse in the present case.

The State of New Jersey in 1905 passed an act declaring that "It shall be unlawful for any person or corporation to transport or carry, through pipes, conduits, ditches or canals, the water of any New Jersey lake or river into any other State for use therein," and the United States Supreme Court, in an opinion written by our own Justice Holmes, sustained the law with a broad declaration that "the State finds itself in possession of what all admit to be a great public good, and what it has it may keep and give no one a reason for its will." Similar provisions in the law of Nebraska and in the constitution of Idaho have likewise been unhesitatingly sustained by the Supreme Court.

It seems, therefore, that if Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont decide to stand upon their sovereign rights and refuse to share with other States the prospective advantages of hydro-electric development the Federal government is not likely to interfere with that somewhat unneighborly determination.

The American hopes, however, that a broader view of the situation will prevail, and that the Mountain States will neither permit their greatest natural resources asset to be exploited by a profiteering monopoly nor seek an over-rapid industrial expansion at the expense of the economic development and social welfare of neighbor States.

If Maine and New Hampshire water powers are to be developed only as rapidly as new industries can be attracted and established within their boundaries the development will be costly and slow, and all New England will be deprived for a generation of advantages that under a more liberal policy might be realized within a decade.

Far better, let these States develop their water powers under public ownership, and sell power to the others on terms of mutual advantage.

Publishing Federal Income Taxpayers' Names

Said the Boston Globe in an editorial paragraph the other day:

> The announcement that the names and addresses of those who make federal income tax returns will all be published, without the amount of the taxes paid, reminds an old-timer that in the time of the Civil War both the name and the amount paid were published when the income tax was levied. Some would be greatly interested if the amounts of the taxes were published now.

True, neighbor. And the interest would be greatly enhanced if the widely differing amounts which the same individual pays in taxes upon the same income to the nation and to the State respectively were published in parallel columns. It is safe to say that a pretty radical revision of the Massachusetts income tax law would be an early result of such a showing.

One of the most striking illustrations of the ascendancy over legislation which concentrated wealth has obtained during the present generation is the reversal of the time-honored policy of publicity of tax assessments to which the Globe refers. The tax-dodger differs from other public enemies who "love darkness rather than light because their deeds are evil" chiefly in his power to command by law the obscurity for which other thieves are obliged to rely upon natural causes.

THE OTHER FELLOW MAY KNOW SOMETHING

If you are the sort of man who won't take advice from anyone, you are going to miss many opportunities for help which would benefit you greatly.

When a man grows a big head, feels he can get along without the assistance of anyone, and will not listen to suggestions, he has ceased to advance and others may soon note a decline in his effectiveness and success.

The really big man—the really successful man—is the one who is ever on the alert to get every little bit of knowledge possible to gain.

The biggest men in the country hold conferences for the purpose of getting the ideas of other men, and they hold meetings of their employes for the same purpose.

You have an inflated idea of your own ability if you think you know more than the great world-renowned financiers.

It is only the little fellow who has nothing more to learn.

That big head of yours is costing you a lot of money.

How much will you have to lose before you wake up?

POSTMASTER-GENERAL Burleson.
WASHINGTON, D. C.
MY DEAR Burley.
THE LAST time I wrote you.
I ADDRESSED you as general.
AND YOU never answered.
SO I'M trying Burley.
WHICH I understand.
WAS ONE of your nicknames.
WHEN YOU were a boy.
AND IF you don't answer.
I DON'T care.
BECAUSE, ANYWAY.
I GET a lot of letters.
AND WHY I'm writing.
IS JUST to tell you.
THAT IN a little town.
CALLED EAST Auburn.
IN CALIFORNIA.
THERE IS a postmaster.
WHO IS foolish enough.
TO HAVE an idea.
THAT THE job he has.
IS A job.
AND NOT a vacation.
AND HOW I know it.
IS THAT yesterday.
I DROVE to town.
AND IT was raining.
AND I went to the postoffice.
TO GET the mail.
AND BUY some stamps.
AND I was worrying.
WHERE I'D put the stamps.
TO KEEP them dry.
AND FROM sticking together.
AND A young woman.
CAME UP to the wicket.
AND LOOKED at me.
WHILE I asked for the mail.
WHICH IN itself.
IS MOST unusual.
AND AFTER that.
I ASKED for some stamps.
AND SHE reached in a box.
AND GOT an envelope.
THAT HAD been used.
AND CUT in two.
WITH A pair of scissors.
AND INTO the envelope.
SHE PUT the stamps.
AND HANDED them to me.
AND WHEN I got home.
THEY WERE perfectly dry.
AND NOT stuck together.
AND, OF course, I know.
IT'S A little thing.
AND UNIMPORTANT.
BUT WHOEVER it was.
WHO STARTED it.
IF HE had a chance.
YOU NEVER can tell.
HOW FAR he'd go.
AND YOU and I know.
IT'S THE little things.
THAT COUNT the most.
AND IF Charles Evans Hughes.
HAD JUST shaken hands.
WITH HIRAM Johnson.
WHEN HE was here.
SEE WHERE he'd be.
AND SOMEBODY else.
WOULD HAVE had your job.
AND, ANYWAY.
IF YOU wrap a porus plaster.
WHY NOT wrap stamps.
I THANK you.

A Pyrenean Tradition

The Desert de Carlitte, in the Pyrenees, close on 10,000 feet above the sea, contains no fewer than sixty lakes of varying sizes. These, according to local tradition, were left at the time of the flood. When the waters subsided, it is said, Noah and his family landed on the Puy de Prigue, one of the highest peaks in the district. Proof of the truth of this tradition is found in an iron ring to which, the peasants declare, the ark was moored when the landing was made.

Fishing for Birds

Taking young geese on the island of Romania the outermost Hebrides, is a most perilous business, though large captures are occasionally made. A crew recently returned with a bag of two thousand two hundred birds, which found a ready sale at Ness. The men were lowered over the face of the cliffs, which are four to six hundred feet sheer to the sea. They then lassoed the birds in their nests by means of a fishing rod with a noosed string at the end.

CAN'T ESCAPE IT

J. Caesar paid no attention to the warning, "Beware the Ides of March." Look what happened to him. In the good old days of 44 B. C. the Ides of March fell on the 15th. Collector John F. Malley has sounded repeated warnings to beware the coming 15th of March, and have your federal income tax paid. And that's no idle warning, either.

Woman witness in Boston Municipal Court: "I don't know the name of the other gentleman—I mean policeman."

PROMPT AND OBLIGING

Speaking of suffragettes, remember Miss Elsie Hill of Norwalk, Ct., who was credited with the idea of the "nightgown strike" at Charles street jail. She was in the Manhattan flock which undertook to "rush" the police line guarding the Metropolitan Opera House at President Wilson's Tuesday night speech there. Reports of the fracas described Miss Hill as struggling with a big New York policeman, shrieking meanwhile. "Why don't you arrest me; why don't you?" The policeman finally said: "Well, I'll arrest you, and I'll arrest you good." Whereupon he collared her and marched her away.

WELL BROUGHT UP

Somerville sets a new standard in courtesy—the polite footpad. Alton Brown was held up at revolver point and robbed of $162 in cash and jewelry by a chap who apologized handsomely, adding: "I wouldn't think of taking your money, only I need it very badly." The police are anxious to meet him.

THE "DRY" W. W.

Headline on international temperance item reads: "Dry Workers of World to Assemble in Paris." In a "wet" city at that.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

No Job for Him

Editor Boston American:

In my opinion it's about time to cut out all this talk about welcome for the homecoming boys. What does that get them? Not a job, I'm sure. I am an ex-navy man, who did fifteen months' foreign service and got released only to find out there were no jobs to be got. Was at the Federal Employment Bureau on Canal street and told to go to Squantum. There I was met by a civilian with a very pleasant smile and told there was absolutely nothing doing. At the same place you can see hundreds of aliens working and making big money while a man who gave up a good job to enter the service is out of luck. I have been in New York and Philadelphia, also other cities on the coast, and Boston, I'm sorry to say, is the poorest one of them all in looking out for ex-service men. I have lived in Boston all my life previous to joining the outfit and used to be proud of it, but I'll never be accused of bragging about it in the future. I was but one of about 150 ex-service men turned down by "the man with a smile" at Squantum. He recommended us to Canal street, the place we had just come from.

EX-NAVY MAN.

Against the League

Editor Boston American:

I am glad to see the American in the fight against the League. Every United States Senator, and the President, takes an oath to uphold the Constitution, and he who would subjugate the Constitution violates his oath and should be impeached. Go to it!

HARD HEARTS THAT COLDLY SHUT OUT MERCY

By Winifred Black

DID you see the story in the paper about the girl who had a woman arrested and put in jail for slander?

The girl was young and well to do—she has a good position in some millinery shop or other, so the paper said, wears neat and rather smart shoes, and is pretty.

She lives at home with her mother, brother and sister—and she has a sweetheart. That's what all the trouble is about—the sweetheart.

The woman who was arrested said something about the girl to the sweetheart, and the sweetheart teased the girl about it, and the girl had the woman arrested for slander.

The woman who was arrested was almost scared to death when the policeman came after her. She has a husband and four little children, and the baby has been ill for some time. The woman cried and begged the girl to forgive her.

But the girl laughed when she heard about the children, and would not withdraw the charge. So the mother left three of her little children at home alone and went to jail, taking her baby with her. And the girl who had her arrested seems to think it is all just exactly as it should be.

Perhaps it is—who knows? Perhaps the woman with the four children talks faster and says more than she should. Perhaps those few days in jail will teach her to bridle her tongue.

The Better Way

But do you know what I would do if I were the sweetheart in the case? I would break my engagement with this extremely just young person—and I wouldn't be her sweetheart another day—no, not even if she had eyes like purple pansies and hair as black as night and a voice like dripping honey.

I wouldn't tie myself up for life with an unforgiving nature like that for all the promises ever made this side of the Garden of Eden.

"You are five minutes late—where have you been?"

"What did you do with the $5 I saw you put in your purse yesterday?"

"I was looking at you when you smiled at that girl this morning."

"You forgot our wedding anniversary—I shall never forgive you."

Can't you hear these sentences and a dozen like them come ringing down out of the future of the man who marries a girl who prides herself upon the fact that she cannot forgive?

"I am not generous," said a woman I know not long ago, "but I know I am just."

And she, who was so proud of being just, as she called it, turned a helpless little girl out into the street because the little girl had done wrong and ought "to suffer for it."

Just! Oh, heart of iron, give me no such justice!

I don't want justice for myself nor for those I love. I want mercy, sympathy, forgiveness. And until I am so perfect that I need none of these myself, I pray I may never forget to give them, and to give them freely and with an open heart.

Beware the Type

So she slandered you, did she, my high-headed, proud young woman, with your beauty and your youth and your home and your friends—she, the poor little, friendless, hard-working mother? What a pity you couldn't forgive her for it—and make her your loving friend for life.

Wouldn't it have been nice if you could have gone to the little woman in her crowded little flat, and taken a bit of candy for the children and invited them all, every one of them, to your wedding?

Well, you are young yet. Some day you may look back and wish you hadn't been quite so proud of being, what no doubt seems to you, "absolutely just."

Flying Machines Pay Duty
News for Charlemagne
The Criminal Insane
Champion Hamslicer

By Arthur Brisbane

(Copyright, 1919.)

Aeroplanes pay duty. This is decided by United States government. A Canadian machine landing in Detroit is decided to be a "manufactured article" and must pay 20 per cent. to the government. This will sound strange in years to come when men will fly around the world as freely as they now "motor" about their own neighborhood, and the flying machine will be considered simply another pair of legs.

The tunnel under the Pyrenees is completed, uniting France and Spain. Another forward step that will outlast interest in today's petty problems.

The ghost of Roland haunting the pass at Roncesvalle, where the mighty sword cut the rock, must be puzzled to hear the rumbling of trains under the earth where Charlemagne led his retiring armies.

We review calmly the changes from that day to this, but cannot realize the infinitely greater change that separates us from the future and real civilization.

The League of Nations gives to the British empire six votes in the league to one vote for the United States. In proportion to its self-governing population, as compared with the self-governing population of the United States, England will have actually twelve times the influence of the United States. Medill McCormick, rising young Senator from Illinois, asks, his voice trembling with rage, "Is one Englishman twelve times as important as one American?" Answer: No, but one British diplomat is twelve times as smart as any other diplomat.

The Armenian Relief Committee asks, with a sob, "Suppose 400,000 kiddies in New York were dying of starvation, what would you do about it?"

There are many "kiddies" half-starved in the public schools of New York and other great cities, unable to absorb free education for lack of sufficient nourishment. They number tens of thousands, perhaps hundreds of thousands. And the people of the richest country in the world do nothing about it. It is easier for a prosperous American to become excited about starving children in Armenia, Persia and Syria than about half-starved children in the United States.

The appeal for the unfortunate children in the East should stir every generous mind. And it may touch American prosperity to take seriously its duty to all hungry children, including even the hungry children living in America.

Mrs. J. C. Marks, admirable canteen worker of New York City, is declared to be "champion ham-slicing lady" of the United States. She sliced three thousand seven hundred and twenty pounds of ham in a short time. A million fat and thin men will say, "The world would be better off if MORE women would take pride in slicing ham and things like that, and drop all their nonsense." And the same fat and thin gentlemen will go out to the golf links, and slice, and dig, and foozle, and curse, and call it "useful exercise, restful to the mind."

Of all convicts in prisons, 60 per cent. are insane. So says Dr. Kirckwey, counsel for the Pennsylvania Commission of Penal Legislation.

Of these unfortunates, some were born with twisted brains, could not find their way and never were guided. Others, according to Dr. Kirchwey, "were brought up in institutions where there was nothing to form character, but everything to weaken it." Others, not insane, but with weak minds that could not resist crime, are made insane by the shameful brutality that is called prison discipline.

There is improvement gradually. Nothing rapid can be expected. Only a little while ago even those confined as insane were cruelly tortured, beaten, chained to iron rings, fastened to the stone floor of cold, damp cells. This writer has seen in foreign insane asylums arrangements for punishing miserable men and women by exposing them to powerful streams of ice cold water until they fell exhausted. We are not far from the condition of brute beasts in our treatment of defenceless misery.

It is a comfort to know of the constant effort to rescue children from deadening institutional life that destroys mind and character. Intelligent Jewish philanthropy in which Julius Rosenwald, to his great honor, was a conspicuous leader, set the example by keeping dependent children out of institutions, giving the money to their mothers to take care of the children, instead of spending it on institutions and taking the children from the mother.

The 1918 report of the Widows' Pension Law in New York shows that 5,000 mothers and 15,000 children were cared for and kept united by the State at a cost of $1,700,000. There is commonsense legislation, wise expenditure. The money will be returned to the State later in empty prison and insane asylum cells and in the saving on current not used for the electric chair.
